Steel import war looming

By Anne Hazard
P-RJ Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A battle is brewing between America's steel producers and their American customers who make everything from appliances to automotive parts.

At issue is whether the U.S. government should continue to protect domestic steel makers by extending voluntary quotas that limit steel imports into this country.

U.S. steel firms, such as National Steel, say if the quotas are not continued beyond their expiration in September, the industry will be irreparably harmed.

The fundamental problem, said Sheldon Wesson of the American Iron and Steel Institute, is a worldwide capacity to produce steel that far outstrips demand.

The trade group represents about 80 percent of the domestic steel producers.

"If there were no VRA (voluntary restraint agreements) system, everybody and his brother would start dumping steel in the U.S. market," Wesson said.

"Additional capacity is being created by developing nations, so the problem goes on," he said.

led by the huge truck and tractor maker Caterpillar Inc., headquartered in Peoria, some manufacturers say the U.S. steel industry is healthy and no longer needs protection.

They maintain the quotas have hurt their competitive position here and abroad by raising their production costs and causing

32 hanging crows probably decoys, not cult sacrifice

CHOUTEAU ISLAND — The discovery Tuesday of 32 dead crows hanging in pairs in five trees cannot be proven to be cult related, despite rumors that have circulated since the finding, said a spokesman for the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

About 100 empty shotgun shells were found in the vicinity of the crows by a sheriff's department officer. The area is a popular spot for crow hunting, which is legal in Illinois between Dec. 1 and March 31, according to Capt. Robert Hertz of the sheriff's staff.

"We can't positively say why the crows were there," Hertz said. "Reports of the crows were first heard in Granite City on Tuesday afternoon. Learning of the crows at about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, the sheriff's department assigned a deputy to investigate."

The birds had been tied with heavy nylon string in pairs and apparently had been thrown into the trees to attract other crows.

But officers reported no evidence of a cult being involved.

"Someone surmised it was some form of cult activity and I went to see it for myself," Hertz said. "I admit, I've never seen anything quite like it before. It was most unusual."

But officers reported no evidence of a cult being involved.

The trees in which the birds were hanging were about 100 yards from where West Chain of Rocks Road is blocked off to prevent vehicles getting onto the old Chain of Rocks Bridge.

Louis Clonko, a longtime resident of Chouteau Island, couldn't understand why the crows were newsworthy.

Crows migrate to Chouteau Island at this time of year because of the nearby landfill, and then move between the landfill and the Mississippi River for water and food, Clonko told authorities.

Crow hunting is a common activity at the site and the crows could have been placed in the trees to attract other crows so hunters could shoot them, Hertz quoted Clonko as saying.

"I was leaving for church one day and I heard shooting," Clonko said Wednesday. "A crow flew over and I saw a tree draped with black garbage bags. They said, 'Crow decoys and the bags don't work nearly as well as the decoys,' he said."

Mrs. Louis Clonko said she and her husband often take walks through that area. "Farther along the road and on the old bridge, kids have written lots of symbols. We walk up there all the time and you can see the symbols the kids have written," she said.

Venice man enters plea

EDWARDSVILLE — Harold C. "D.D." Koelker III, 22, a former firefighter in Venice and the son of the assistant fire chief, was sentenced in circuit court Monday to 24 days in jail on two counts of arson. Three other counts were dismissed.

Koelker was sentenced by Circuit Judge Charles V. Romani Jr. and ordered released for time served. He was placed on two years probation.

He had been charged with setting five fires in vacant buildings in Venice last July and September.

Koelker was a firefighter for about eight months in 1987 and 1988. He was discharged for not obtaining a license to operate the equipment, said Fire Chief Willie Dumas.

The sentencing came in what is called a "stipulated plea trial," which means that Koelker pleaded not guilty but presented no defense against the prosecution's allegations.

Koelker's father is Assistant Fire Chief Harold C. Koelker Jr. His mother is City Comptroller Roseanne Koelker.

No one was hurt in any of the fires, and restitution is to be determined by the Department of Probation, officials said.

Robbery suspect captured

PONTON BEACH — A 31-year-old man being sought in connection with a Belleville robbery was arrested without incident by a Ponton Beach police officer at 2:50 p.m. Sunday.

The arrest of Jon A. Daniels of Collinsville resulted from a resident being concerned about an unfamiliar car parked for several hours near Bruns and Bischoff roads off State Aid 35. The resident called Ponton Beach police.

Daniels was charged Monday with the robbery of Kai's Fast (See ROBBERY, Page 2A)

ETC move forum scheduled Feb. 5

By Nicole Vaughn

MADISON — An unannounced visit to the Educational Therapy Center in Granite City has left School Superintendent Dan Kostenki highly pleased.

At 9 a.m. Saturday a public forum will be held at Harris School, Seventh Street and Alton Avenue, to determine public opinion on the proposed move of ETC from Lake School in Granite City to the vacant Louis Baer School in Madison.

On Monday, Kostenki took a curious Madison resident to the school for a visit.

"The gentleman is a retired resident who is going to be out of town during the forum," Kostenki said. "He just wanted to see what all the publicity was about."

Letters were sent to residents within a three-block radius of Louis Baer last week, informing them about and inviting them to the forum.

Kostenki said he was not surprised by the scene that greeted the visitors. In fact, it was just what he expected.

"They were running a school just like any other school," Kostenki said. "They were running the kind of program they say they're going to."

Kostenki said he would gladly take residents to the school.

Extra signatures place Perjak in peril

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Sandra Shaw, a candidate for 4th Ward alderman, said incumbent Alderman Sharon Perjak should have known better.

"I just felt everybody should follow the same rules," Shaw said. "An incumbent especially should know the rules."

"Here we go," Perjak said. "It's really getting ridiculous."

At issue is whether Perjak had too many signatures on her petitions filed with City Clerk Bob Stevens on Jan. 16. A hearing to decide if Perjak should be removed from the ballot will be held Friday in Edwardsville.

Shaw filed an objection to Perjak's petitions Monday stating that under provisions of the Illinois statutes the number of signatures must equal not less than 5 percent nor more than 8 percent of the number of votes cast in the ward in the preceding general election.

For the 4th Ward, the number required was at least 95 but not more than 152. Perjak's petitions contained 160 signatures.

Under the law, the objection is heard by an electoral board composed of the mayor, city clerk and senior alderman. The board's decision is then subject to judicial review.

"I told Bob Stevens about it, having eight too many signatures, when I filed and he said 10 plus or minus was all right. He should know, right?" Perjak said.

"I questioned him at the time. I asked if I should scratch them off. I can't understand it. But it's no big deal."

"I think I would be more concerned if I didn't have enough than about having eight too many."

Stevens said: "I don't know that I told her that. I know I told her the numbers required."

The job of the city clerk, Stevens said, is to accept whatever petitions candidates choose to turn in, not decide whether they are legal or not.

Shaw said she had checked all the names on the petitions of both Perjak and Dan Brown, another 4th Ward candidate.

"It's nothing personal," Shaw said. "I just want things done right."

Sharon Perjak still on ballot?

Romantic rodent looking for love, not shadow

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Today is Groundhog Day, and this morning a rodent named Phil peeked out of his den in Punksutawney, Pa., and saw his shadow.

According to tradition, that foretells six more weeks of winter.

Inquiring minds want to know, how did this tradition get started? What school of meteorology did Phil study at? Were he and Channel 5's Bob Richards fraternity brothers?

The Granite City Public Library yielded no answers to the last two questions, but we found the answer to the first in the February 1985 issue of Smithsonian magazine, along with some general information about groundhogs. (By the way, if you look up "groundhogs" in the Guide to Periodical Literature, it will tell you to look under "woodchucks.")

Back in the early 1800s in Punksutawney, where the winters are particularly long and bleak, a few good old boys sought relief from winter's grip by purchasing a quantity of strong drink. They then journeyed to the bonnies with hoes, dug a number of woodchucks (see groundhogs) from their dens, barbecued and ate them.

They had such a good time, they did it again the next year and invited friends. The thing snowballed and became an annual event for young Punksutawney bucks. By 1886, a local newspaper editor named Clymer Freas dubbed the group the Punksutawney Groundhog Club.

There are a number of people in that part of Pennsylvania of German heritage. Recalling a legend from the old country — where the European hedgehog, a cousin of the groundhog, is reputed to have weather forecasting powers — Freas declared Punksutawney the weather capital of the world. The rest is history.

Today, the club gathers every Feb. 2 at a Punksutawney park called Gobblers Knob. They no longer eat the groundhogs, and the booze has been replaced by non-alcoholic Groundhog Punch. The club president bangs on the bunker, and when Phil answers the knock he questions him in "groundhogese" and announces whether he saw his shadow.

In addition to a top hat and waistcoat, the president wears heavy gloves. Groundhog, which can reach 15 pounds, have rather large teeth and testy dispositions. But then, who wouldn't feel ornery about being awakened from hibernation?

Now for some straight stuff about groundhogs.

The groundhog (or woodchuck) is a member of the family of rodents known as ground squirrels, which includes chipmunks, prairie dogs and hoary marmots.

They hibernate like bears, and it's true that in Pennsylvania, groundhogs usually awaken in February. In the other locales where the rodents are found (west to the Great Plains and south to Mississippi) they awaken earlier in warmer climates and later in colder ones. But he (males are the first to wake; females sleep in) is not looking for his shadow.

Truth is, he's looking for love.

Not finding any ladies out and about he often spends the next few weeks until the ladies wake up getting in nasty brawls with other males. A favorite tactic is to bite the other guy's tail off. Cuddly, eh?

Turns out old Phil is a randy, whorvy little rascal. A hunka hunka burnin' love with the disposition of a hockey fan.

INJURED IN CRASH: Long Lake Volunteer Fire Department personnel extricate Jason Durrett, 31, of the 400 block of East Chain of Rocks Road in Mitchell from his car Friday afternoon. His westbound car was involved in a collision with an auto driven south on Lake Drive by Constance Dopmeyer, 23, of the 2100 block of Lee Avenue. Durrett was taken by Campbell Ambulance Service to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment. Dopmeyer was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way at an intersection.

"I had confidence that I wouldn't be embarrassed and I wasn't," Kostencki said. ETC Coordinator Bob Burkethomas was also pleased by the visit.

"They seemed glad to come out," Burkethomas said. "I figured that's a good sign."

Seven students from Madison attend ETC, accounting for 14 percent of the school's enrollment, Burkethomas said.

The proposed move has been under fire by the Madison Police Department. Police Chief Charles Briddick and Lt. Paul Bargiel initially voiced opposition during a committee meeting in early December. Bargiel reinforced his negative stand with a report issued at another committee meeting in mid-January.

Within the report, Bargiel said that he had contacted the Granite City, East Alton and Edwardsville police departments to gain statistics on calls from ETC. The program also has a facility similar to the one at Lake at Niagara School in East Alton and a resident group home in Edwardsville.

The conclusion of the report was "the general consensus of the three police agencies contacted is that the centers are problems for the police and the communities."

Burkethomas said he will have his own statistics at the forum.

Protestant Welfare installs officers

Protestant Welfare Inc. installed its 1989 officers at a monthly meeting held on Jan. 17 at St. John Lutheran Church.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Harold E. Krohne Jr., retiring president.

Installed were president, Steve Sues, St. John United Church of Christ; first vice president, Denise Wright, First Baptist Church; second vice president, John Graham, St. Peter United Church of Christ; treasurer, Kenneth Whittington, First Church of the Nazarene; and secretary, Sandy Siebert, Emmanuel Baptist Church.

In 1988, Protestant Welfare assisted 2,036 people with food and 1,112 people with clothing, according to Dolores Gaines, executive secretary.

Protestant Welfare has been helping Quad City area residents since its organization in 1953.

Track convenience store in the 6000 block of West Main Street, Belleville, occurring at 5:47 a.m. Sunday. He is being held in the St. Clair County Jail in Belleville in lieu of a $10,000 bond.

Daniels allegedly demanded money from a clerk at the Belleville store and was handed approximately $200 cash from the cash register, according to a spokesman at the St. Clair County state's attorney's office.

Warrants are also expected to be sought today against Danivov by the Cahokia Police Department, according to Police Sgt. James Nichols. Cahokia authorities suspect Daniels of robbing the Clark Oil Station in the 1000 block of Camp Jackson Road, Cahokia, at 11:11 p.m. Saturday, Nichols said. An undetermined amount of money was taken from a cash register.

Prior to Daniels' arrest, Pontoon Beach Patrolman Dan Abel was checking the farmland area off State Aid 35 for the parked car described by the caller. Abel saw a gold-colored, four-door auto heading west on Bischoff Road.

The officer realized the car also matched the description of a vehicle being sought in connection with a robbery. He had heard the vehicle and its occupant described in an earlier broadcast over ISPERN, the Illinois State Police radio network, and the description tallied. The patrolman stopped the driver about one-tenth of a mile west of Bruns Road and ordered the man, later identified as Daniels, to get out of the car.

"He didn't resist; he just wanted to leave," Abel said. Abel was assisted at the scene by Sgt. John Novich of the Madison County Sheriff's Department and Pontoon Beach Police Sgt. Dan McKinney.

Daniels was turned over to Novich for transfer to the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville pending additional information about the robberies which occurred in St. Clair County.

"He did a real good job," said McKinney, speaking of Abel, who has been a police officer since June 1988.

BEING TAKEN INTO CUSTODY Sunday afternoon is Jon Daniels, 31, a Collinsville resident, by Pontoon Beach Patrolman Dan Abel (right), assisted by Madison County Deputy Sheriff Sgt. John Novich.

SEMC physical therapy extends hours

St. Elizabeth Medical Center's Physical Therapy Department has found a way to make its services more accessible to its patients. By extending its office hours, Physical Therapy has made its services more convenient for patients who work during the day.

In March 1988, the Physical Therapy Department began offering treatment from 7:30 a.m. until 6 p.m., Monday through Friday. Although it was done initially as a pilot project, the success of this schedule has led to its permanent adoption.

Jackie Haug, SEMC director of Physical Therapy, said the hours were changed in response to scheduling problems within the department. "We found it was too crowded," she said. "Patients were bunched together and sometimes there just was not enough room for treating patients."

After questioning patients, Rose Bruemmer, P.T. supervisor, felt a change in hours could help relieve the congestion. "We had an awful lot of people who wanted to either report before work or after work," she said. "We decided to pilot the program to see if it would be successful, and it has turned out to be very much so. There seems to be quite a bit of demand for the later hours."

"When people work night shifts," said Haug, "they like to be able to come here right after work so it doesn't interfere with their sleeping patterns. The most benefit is to people who work outside the Granite City area because they can work their full shift and still be able to get their treatments."

"A lot of employers do not appreciate their employees taking off time from work," said Bruemmer. "By offering this during after-work hours, we are giving an added service to the patient."

"Some patients used to have to take comp time off to get here," said Angela Thomas, a registered physical therapist, "and now they don't have to. We've definitely heard a lot of positive input from our patients."

Dialogue with seniors takes a trip to Paradise

"Adventure in Paradise" will be the topic at a session of Dialogue With Senior Citizens on Wednesday, Feb. 8, at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The discussion will begin at 1 p.m. in the Mississippi Illinois rooms in the University Center.

John Rider, professor of mass communication at SIUE, will discuss the time he and his wife, Louise, spent in the Federated States of Micronesia as Fulbright scholars. Rider will present a close look at the cultural and educational systems of this society.

Dialogue is an educational and cultural enrichment program for older adults, and is sponsored by the SIUE Gerontology Program. It is free of charge and open to all senior citizens.

Transportation is available at the Senior Citizens Center, 1003 Main St., Edwardsville. A bus will leave the center at 12:30 p.m., said a spokesman at 692-5454.

Hommert potentate of Ainad; Taylor outer guard

Orville E. Hommert of Granite City was installed as the new potentate of Ainad Temple, at the organization's annual meeting held Jan. 28.

He appointed Jack P. Taylor of Granite City as outer guard. Hommert is married to the former Catherine Colligan and they have one son, John, who resides in Granite City.

Hommert served with the 15th Air Force in Italy during World War II.

He retired from the U.S. Post Office in 1980 following 37 years of service.

Hommert was appointed to the line of officers of Ainad in 1975 by Past Potentate R.H. "Dick" Ervay.

Taylor was appointed outer guard by Potentate Hommert during the annual meeting of Ainad on Jan. 28.

Taylor was born in Madison and is the son of Clova L. Taylor and the late Jack B. Taylor. An operating engineer, he works out of Local 520.

Orville Hommert

He and his wife are real estate investors in Granite City.

Taylor also serves as a trustee of the Arlington Water District.

Jack Taylor

Taylor is married to the former Velda Masterson and they have two sons, Jack P. Taylor Jr. of Granite City and Bradley H. Taylor of Irvine, Calif.

Ainad Temple is located at 609 St. Louis Ave. in East St. Louis and is one of 180 Shrine temples in North America.

The Shrine of North America owns and operates what has become known as the "world's greatest philanthropy" — the Shriners' hospitals for crippled children.

The 22 hospitals specialize in treatment of children with orthopedic problems or burn injuries. The hospitals are open to all children from birth to the age of 18, and all treatment is absolutely free. There is no charge to the family, insurance companies or any governmental agency.

Children from Southern Illinois receive treatment at the St. Louis Unit of the Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children.

Those who know of a child in need of orthopedic or burn care may tell a Shriner or call 1-800-237-5855.

Lake School building preparation started

GRANITE CITY — If Ron Landman has his way, Webster School will not be used, at all in the next school year.

"We just spent a whole week moving furniture out," Landman, District 9 director of buildings and grounds, said. "I hope we don't have to use Webster but it's really too early to tell."

Following the school board's Jan. 17 decision to close Webster School at the end of this school term and reopen Lake School for the fall term, work started on the Lake building in preparation for that move.

Landman said he and his staff had also replaced 78 broken windows and cleaned four rooms in the now-closed wing of the building. The Educational Therapy Center currently occupies one wing.

"We've tried to clean to the point that we can get into the building," Landman said. As soon as the cleaning is complete, the rooms can be painted, he said.

Landman said he is currently seeking bids on new lockers, cafeteria tables and other equipment for Lake. He said he also plans to begin replacing the gymnasium ceiling as soon as the weather breaks.

Heat and water in the vacant sections of the building will be turned on soon to check units and pipes for possible repairs, Landman said.

"It will start moving fast once we get this initial work done," Landman said. "For right now, though, we're playing shuffle stuff."

Hospice recruiting volunteers

GRANITE CITY — Hospice of Madison County, a department of St. Elizabeth Medical Center that provides home care to terminally ill patients and their families, is recruiting professional and lay volunteers to help with patient and family care.

Completion of a 12-hour volunteer orientation and training course is mandatory for applicants before beginning volunteer service for Hospice of Madison County.

The signup deadline is Feb. 3.

The course will be offered on two Saturdays, Feb. 11 and 18, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., in the Wiesman Room at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, 2100 Madison Ave., Granite City. There is no charge for the training.

Designed to prepare Hospice volunteers for their roles as care givers and as representatives of Hospice of Madison County, the course teaches practical and communication skills needed to fulfill the duties and responsibilities of Hospice volunteers on patient care assignments.

The course includes videos, presentations, by guest lecturers, talks by current volunteers, and assigned reading materials.

Hospice of Madison County provides physical, emotional, social and spiritual support to terminally ill patients and their families, through an interdisciplinary team of staff professionals and trained volunteers. It has served communities throughout Madison County and in surrounding counties continuously since 1979.

Hospice of Madison County is licensed by Illinois as a full-service hospice, accredited for high quality of care by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH), and certified to offer hospice benefits to Medicare and Illinois Public Aid patients.

Those interested in becoming a Hospice of Madison County volunteer may call the Hospice office at 798-3399 or 656-8228 by Feb. 3 to arrange an interview.

Agile flag thief strikes

GRANITE CITY — An agile thief stole two flags from the Taste of Italy Restaurant in the 2600 block of Washington Avenue on Jan. 25.

This is not the first time a flag thief has plagued the restaurant and saddened its patriotic owner, Franco Cupini, authorities noted.

Cupini proudly displays a 10-foot American flag worth $200 and an Italian flag about 3 by 4 feet in size and valued at $35, typical of those he puts on the flagpole at his restaurant.

Both the flags of the United States and Italy were taken from the flagpole last week at the south end of the property.

The thief had to climb the pole to get at the flags, since both were bolted to the pole rather than being hoisted on ropes in the usual fashion, Cupini said.

American and Italian flags also were stolen from the restaurant on July 4 in 1987.

An Italian flag has been taken three times from the flagpole, but once a repentant thief returned the banner, Mrs. Cupini said.

The name of the restaurant is inscribed on the side of each flag and the latest pair to be stolen had been flying only about a week and a half prior to the theft, she said.

Mrs. Cupini hopes the parents of the young person who climbed the pole and took the flags will see that they are returned. So far, the flags remain missing.

Madison police

TV set taken by burglar

A radar detector and the kitchen door at the home of Vivian McNeil in the 800 block of Webster Street and stole a remote control television worth $250, she reported Jan. 20. A sheet had been removed from a bed and loaded with video games and tapes, but was left behind.

Medicine taken from car

The rear door was pried to get into the home of Seth Williams in the 1600 block of Fourth Street and to steal clothing items, it was reported Jan. 25.

Clothing items missing

The rear door was pried to get into the home of Seth Williams in the 1600 block of Fourth Street and to steal clothing items, it was reported Jan. 25.

Burglar damages auto

The dashboard was ripped out and wires were cut in the 1984 auto of David L. Clark of the 900 block of McCambridge Avenue on Jan. 22. An AM-FM stereo cassette player valued at $700 was stolen from the car.

Theft at truck plaza

Items valued at more than $300 were taken from the flatbed truck of Gregory M. Addison of Alabam at the Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza on Illinois 208 on Jan. 23. Missing were a 25-foot chain, two blue and white tarpaulins and a binder, the driver said.

Driver injured on 203

Cherry Chavis, 36, of the 100 block of Carver Street, Eagle Park, sustained an injury at 4:40 p.m. Jan. 24 when the station wagon she was driving north on Illinois 203 was involved in a collision at Ohio Street, near the Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza entrance.

Donnie L. Waelitz, 27, of Caseyville, also northbound on the highway, was driving the second vehicle involved in the mishap.

Man struck with pistol

Cordie Harris of the 1500 block of Market Street went to police headquarters at 3 p.m. Jan. 23 and reported he had been shot at by a man.

Harris, 18, said he had borrowed hair clippers from the man, known only by a nickname, and when the man saw Harris at Garesche Homes he demanded some money for the clippers.

When Harris said he had no money, the assailant pulled a pistol and struck Harris behind the left ear.

Harris ran away, with the man firing a shot in his direction. The bullet hit a wall of Grenier Homes.

Traffic warrant served

Bryan Lee Curtis, 23, of the 900 block of Greenwood Street was arrested at 12th Street and Alton Avenue on Jan. 23 on a warrant for failure to appear on a traffic charge. He posted $102 bail and was released pending a court appearance.

Surrenders on warrant

In response to a felony warrant signed by Judge Claude J. Davis of Jersey County, Kenneth S. Briggs, 25, of the 100 block of Garesche Homes surrendered to Madison police Jan. 24.

Briggs was served the warrant, alleging residential burglary, and was released to Jersey County authorities Jan. 28.

No one injured in bus-taxi collision

GRANITE CITY — None of the 20 youngsters riding a full-size church bus was injured in a mishap involving the bus and a taxi at 3 p.m. Jan. 26 on Johnson Road.

Bus driver Harlan B. Keel, 65, of the 2500 block of Stratford Lane was turning east from the parking area at Frohardt Grade School, 2040 Johnson Road, when the right rear tire of the bus hit a taxicab, reports said.

Judy L. Baker, 34, of the 2200 block of Monroe Street, driver of a Rainbow Taxi Service cab, said she was waiting outside the school when the mishap occurred. The taxi company is located at 1215 Madison Ave., Madison.

The 1980 GMC bus, owned by Tri-City Park Tabernacle Church, 3400 Maryville Road, was taking youngsters from Frohardt to the Child Development Center at the church.

Arrested on Pontoon

After clocking a westbound vehicle on radar, a Pontoon Beach officer halted the car. Dempsey L. Cross Jr., 38, of the 4100 block of Lake Drive, Pontoon Beach, on Pontoon Road at Oakmont Drive. He charged Cross with driving under the influence of alcohol, illegal transportation of alcohol and improper lane usage.

A passenger in the vehicle, Michael S. Cross, 37, of the 1900 block of Poplar Street, was charged with illegal possession of alcohol. He posted $52 bail and was released.

At police headquarters, Dempsey Cross Jr. posted $102 bail and his driver's license was released pending a court appearance.

Belleville man charged

While on patrol at 8 p.m. Jan. 17, officers noticed a car parked at the exit to a parking lot on Maryville Road at St. Clair Avenue and aroused the driver, who was slumped over the wheel. Rodney Louis Minner, 32, of Belleville was advised to look the car and walk to the home of a friend.

He was cautioned not to drive or he would be arrested. Seven minutes later, Minner allegedly was seen getting into his car and driving away.

He was stopped by police in the 2100 block of St. Clair Avenue. After being booked, he posted $440 bail and was released pending a hearing.

Racehorse beats odds in life and death battle

By Andy Siering

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS — It was with mixed feelings that Bob Clark brought his horse, Spec's Boy, home from Champaign three days before Christmas. He was glad to have him home, but he didn't know if the animal would live.

The four-year-old stud colt dominated the '88 racing season at Illinois racing tracks, winning 14 of 26 races, placing second five times and third three times. He won $245,000 and set two track records and a state record for three-year-old pacers on a 5/8-mile track.

But on Oct. 11, for the first time in his racing career Spec's Boy broke stride. By the end of the month he was dragging a back leg. A week later, Clark, 60, went out to the barn one morning and found the horse down.

He couldn't get him up. Vets were consulted, but they were puzzled. Spec's Boy wound up in the veterinary hospital of the University of Illinois at Champaign, where he was diagnosed with a rare disease called equine protozoal myeloencephalitis, an inflammation of the brain. It is caused by a one-celled organism and results in paralysis and usually death.

Dr. Allan Spector, a local veterinarian, said the disease is "very rare." Recovery from the disease is equally rare, Spector said. The only way to make a definite diagnosis is by brain necropsy.

The vets in Champaign all said to put the horse down. Even the insurance company with which Clark had a $300,000 policy urged him to take the money and euthanize Spec's Boy.

Clark said no way. "I wouldn't take $15 million for this horse," Clark said emphatically. His son, Mike, describes as "Dad's baby," the colt Clark purchased for $1,600 at the age of 6 months and trained to race himself.

Clark brought Spec's Boy home to his 10-acre farm on Kelly Drive in the Arlington Heights subdivision near Pontoon Beach. He rigged a one-ton hoist in a stall and put a sling under the horse's belly to hold him up. The animal slept for three days.

It was a grim Christmas at the Clark house. Maybe the vets were right. Maybe the horse was a goner.

Clark refused to believe it. "They can't tell you nothing," Clark said of vets. "All they can talk about is possibilities and symptoms, and they charge you for every question you ask. They can't give you nothing to go on. They didn't do him no good whatsoever."

On Jan. 21 in Springfield, Spec's Boy was named the Illinois Horse of the Year for 1988 by District 55 of the U.S. Trotting Association. It wasn't a posthumous award.

Bob Clark didn't believe the experts. He looked at Spec's Boy's undiminished appetite and kept the faith. He brought his pride and joy home to get well.

The sling is gone now from Spec's Boy's stall. On Tuesday, its resident stood at the back of the barn looking through a portal at other horses corralled out back. He seemed to be relishing the unseasonably beautiful weather. He nickered softly.

Rascal, a roly-poly barnyard dog, meandered into the barn. Spec's Boy's ears popped up and he turned and lurched toward Rascal. He staggered a bit at first before chasing Rascal out. The dog made his getaway under the two arms of a racing sulky blocking the doorway.

Spec's Boy snorted and pranced a bit, tossing his head. He's been on his feet for three weeks now. He nosed the "bike," stamped a back hoof and pawed the dirt, as if remembering the sensation of pulling the light-weight carriage down the backstretch to another victory.

"He's been doing some kind of good every day," Bob Clark said, a triumphant grin splitting his pink face in half.

Clark says he thinks the horse just hurt his back somehow. "Jammed a disc or something." A gray cat strolled into the barn. Spec's Boy ignored him. Clark patted him on the haunch, and the horse tossed his head and trotted away.

"See, it's real tender. I think he's just working the soreness out now."

Mike Clark, 33, has his own theory about why the horse got better.

"This horse is used to affection. Dad spoils him rotten. Up at the hospital he was depressed. It's hard to get well when you're depressed. But he's getting real feisty now."

Spec's Boy takes an interest in the clicking of a photographer's camera. He perks up at the sound, almost as if it reminds him of all those times in the winner's circle with the cameras clicking away.

"He knows about cameras," Mike says. "He's so smart."

Bob Clark is around the corner cracking a couple of barnyard eggs into a bucket of grain. Spec's Boy's ears cock sideways as he listens. He sneezes and drools a bit.

"He knows when it's feeding time all right," Mike says. Bob, who used to run a heavy equipment repair shop, raises wheat, corn, oats and barley on 10 leased acres. His horses get fed natural.

Chickens strut around pecking at the dirt. A white rooster with a red comb crows. It's 5 p.m.

"Roosters crow all day, chickens set on the nest any time of year," Clark says. "I think it's chemicals. I don't feed my horses no chemicals. Chemicals got the whole world screwed up."

Dr. Spector, who has never treated Spec's Boy, said if the horse did have equine protozoal myeloencephalitis, he'll probably never race again. Still, the fact that the horse is back on his feet is "a minor miracle," Spector said.

"Most of the time they don't get back up."

Mike Clark said Spec's Boy looking forward to the day Spec's Boy races again.

"It'd be just like a Hollywood movie," he said.

Bob Clark, too, hopes the horse will race again. There is also the possibility of collecting hefty stud fees down the road.

Last February, Spec's Boy — running in snow at Hawthorn race track in Cicero, Ill. — tied a track record that had stood for 16 years. Clark says the horse that originally set the record now commands $80,000 per stud service.

"But I'm not even thinking about that right now," Clark said. "I just want to get him healthy again."

Spec's Boy nickered and nipped at Clark's shoulder. Clark scratched him behind the ear.

Farmer's Almanac a pure delight and American treasure

A few years back I interviewed Judson Hale, the 12th editor in the 197 years of "The Old Farmer's Almanac." I remember Hale, who is still editor, saying that the almanac's chief virtue was precisely that — its long history.

"We show up," Hale said simply, year after year after year.

That may show admirable modesty, but it is considerably shy of the facts, in my opinion and in the opinion of some 9 million readers who rely on the Almanac to tell them what the year's weather will likely be, when to plant various crops and how to compost, the best times to fish, as well as a variety of amusing features such as folk cures for warts and the history of toilets.

Maybe it ain't news, but it sure is fun. Maybe this genuine American treasure became such precisely because it isn't news.

This year's issue has several fascinating features. One dealt with research by a psychology professor at the University of Louisville who claims to have quantified exactly what female facial features men find beautiful.

Dr. Michael Cunningham had 110 male college students rate the photographed faces of 50 women for beauty. He and his assistants then measured the most highly rated faces to come up with an ideal of beauty. The ideal mouth, they found, should be exactly half the width of the face & mouth level. Eyes should be 1/4 the height of the face and 3/4 of the width of the face at eye level. The distance from the center of the eye to the bottom of the eyebrow should be 1/10 the height of the face. The chin should be 1/3 the length of the face, and the total area of the nose should be no more than 5 percent of the total area of the face.

Cunningham then showed pictures of 16 women to 82 students and asked them which women they would be most likely to perform a variety of services for, such as loading a truck, donating a kidney, co-signing a loan or leaping on a terrorist's hand grenade to save.

Boy, were the results suggestive that women with small noses and big eyes would be safe from a terrorist's grenade attack — at least if one of Cunningham's college men was around.

See, the information has absolutely no use, and therein lies its charm.

Similarly, this year's edition has a story about the absolute speed you are traveling. The author added up the rotation of the Earth, its revolving around the Sun, the solar system's orbit around the Milky Way, the Milky Way's rotation motion relative to other galaxies, and its absolute motion relative to the Big Bang instant of creation.

The author calculated that everybody — even women with big noses and beady eyes — is careening through the universe at an absolute speed of more than one million miles per hour! Dizzying, ain't it?

In a look at the tidbits of information with which to astound your friends, Did you know that the longest chicken flight on record is 302 feet 6 inches (as measured in 1979 at the Bob Evans Farm Flying Chicken Meet in Rio Grande, Ohio)? Do you care?

No! But who can resist the charm of this quote? One contestant reported that she trained her chicken by throwing it out the window. "Sometimes she flies. Sometimes she just falls on the car."

Guess it takes a tough woman to make a chicken fly.

Speaking of chickens, elsewhere in the edition we learn that 1) the average chicken foot weighs about one ounce and 2) Chinese are big on eating spiced chicken feet. A Virginia company sells 30 metric tons of chicken feet a month, mostly to China. That ain't chicken feed.

In a look at the history of sanitary plumbing, the Almanac reports that it wasn't, as frequently claimed, a man named John Crapper who invented the flush toilet. Joseph Brahma got the patent for it in 1778.

Nice useful information there, even if it does take away a grain of "believe it or not" bit of trivia. But the Almanac compensates us with an alleged quote from a letter written in the days before toilet paper was in wide use.

"I am seated in the necessary house," the correspondent wrote. "I have your letter before me. Soon it will be behind me."

Steel War

shortages of certain steel products in this country — arguments that the steel industry rejects.

"There are serious questions about whether the costs of this program should be borne any more by steel users," said Samuel Berger, a partner in the law firm of Hogan & Hartson, which represents the Caterpillar-led coalition of manufacturers forming tonight the quotas.

The VRAs were put into place by President Ronald Reagan effective in 1980, partly because of a surge in steel exports to this country.

The domestic steel industry had fallen behind Japan and some European producers in the development of new technology. These producers consequently were able to sell at cheaper prices than could U.S. steel makers.

American mills also were hit by the recession of the early 1980s and weak demand.

Between 1982 and 1988, the domestic industry lost $12 billion.

Nationwide, about 230,000 people lost their jobs, Granite City Steel lost 143 jobs, said spokesman Ben Johannpeter. Laclede Steel lost 400 jobs, spokesman Jim Claes said.

In 1984, 19 foreign countries agreed to participate in the VRA program. They limited steel exports to the United States in exchange for an agreement by the U.S. government not to pursue pending unfair-trade cases against them.

Meanwhile, a number of steel companies, including Laclede Steel Co. and National Steel Corp., the parent of Granite City Steel in Granite City, spent millions to modernize and expand to meet the foreign challenge.

A smaller, more efficient steel industry emerged. In 1987, domestic steel makers realized their first marginal profits since 1981, and last year's profits were even greater, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Caterpillar, the largest private employer in Illinois with 20,000 employees, is adamant that the VRAs have hurt manufacturers which use steel.

Under the VRA system, manufacturers who cannot get the steel they need from a domestic supplier must make a special request to the Commerce Department to buy from a foreign maker if the purchase exceeds the established quota.

Caterpillar was forced to make such a request for an unfinished component used in making construction equipment. It took five months to get Commerce Department approval, a spokesman said.

He commented that this was "idiotic" because the alternative was to go to West Germany and buy the finished product, which would have displaced 100 jobs.

Finished steel is not covered by the VRAs.

Because of complaints about the length of time involved in obtaining such exemptions, Indiana Rep. Peter Visclosky, a Democrat from Merrillville who supports extension of the quotas, asked for an investigation of the process by the Government Accounting Office.

"The GAO's investigation indicated that although the program has had its difficulties, it has improved," Visclosky noted in a December press release. A final GAO report will not be ready until March.

Visclosky also noted concern expressed by the GAO that the exemption process "will be abused by steel consumers and producers as a means of circumventing VRAs."

Steel makers will use a number of studies to bolster their case that the restraint agreements have not caused steel prices to rise.

The domestic industry still is recovering from the downturn of the early- and mid-1980s, said Granite City Steel's Johannpeter. He thinks the constraints give the American industry a chance to get all the facilities modernized," he said.

"The VRAs are a plus. They are allowing American steel companies to invest and modernize their facilities... which will protect jobs over the long term," Granite City will continue its modernization process by building a $140 million continuous caster, the plant's second, he said. The project will start in April.

"Right now, business is very good. We had a great year last year, but when the economy turns a little soft, you're not always playing on a level playing field with steel companies from other countries," said Jim Claes, controller with Laclede.

"If demand drops for world steel, then foreign countries will continue to produce the steel. They won't be able to use it at home; then their governments will subsidize it and they'll sell it here, which will destroy the price structure here," he said.

President George Bush said in a letter late last year to Sen. John Heinz, a Republican from Pennsylvania, that he supports the VRAs. Opponents are hoping, however, for a renewal that is shorter than five years and for the exemption of some steel products.

Congress must authorize the administration to negotiate any extension of the VRAs.

"I think the companies in the coalition recognize that they face an uphill fight," said Randy Miller, a Hogan & Hartson partner helping to direct the coalition of manufacturers opposed to the VRAs.

"The steel industries are well-organized, well-funded and have spent years developing congressional allies."

School yearbook still faces ax

MADISON — Madison High School has less than half of the 100 sales it needs to keep the yearbook tradition alive this school year.

"On the contract we have with Josten's we need to sell at least 100 to justify the cost of printing," Principal Bob Mchelic said.

At Wednesday's deadline, between 50 and 55 of the books had been sold, Mchelic said. When that deadline was issued nearly two weeks ago, only 30 books had been sold.

"It's way short of what we need," Mchelic said. "I feel very pessimistic about it right now."

Mchelic said he plans to update the school board on the matter at tonight's meeting. He said he was going to check the sales and break down the numbers of adults versus students who had ordered the book.

Traditionally, sales of the yearbook have been left up to senior students who had the yearbook to survive at all, those sales may be extended to underclassmen next year, Mchelic said.

Only 51 of the school's 90 seniors had shown up at Hollywood American to buy a yearbook. The Feb. 1 deadline had been imposed to allow one final chance for the other 39 students to get photographic appointments, Mchelic said.

Trivia

The total Granite City payroll for the two-week pay period ending Nov. 15, 1988, was $256,042.07. Regular/Salary totaled $247,162.26, part-time $4,598 and overtime $2,062.98.

OVERCOME YOUR FEARS

Mr. Webster defines fear as, "A painful emotion excited by an expectation of impending danger." I believe that the operative word in that definition is "expectation." When you think about it, we face very few things that we know about, most of our fears are based upon what we imagine will happen to us if a certain event takes place.

In some cases, our fears are justified. If we're to attempt to dash across highway 70 during morning rush hour, we could reasonably expect to be struck by a car, common sense comes into play in these situations. But many of our fears are based upon the unknown and the unknown will only happen should certain events occur.

We take what may be an inconsequential trifling such as speaking before the members of our club or church group and through a series of mind games, we build it up to monstrous proportions. We envision all kinds of terrible things that can happen to us if we don't give a speech that worthy of William F. Buckley. What then is the best way to overcome this type of fear and to keep similar ones from occurring?

Gordon Liddy, one of the principal Water-gate players wrote that as a child he feared storms. To conquer this fear, he lashed himself to a tree and stayed there all night during a tremendous thunderstorm. While this is a bizarre act performed by a rather bizarre individual, in it is the secret for conquering fears. "Do that which frightens you most."

Once you are able to accomplish that which frightens you the most and find that the consequence of your act are not nearly as dire as you suspected they would be, your expectations of other fears are certainly lessened.

What you have done is turn an "expectation" into a reality and realities are much easier to deal with.

Retired federal workers discuss law dealing with catastrophic insurance

The National Association of Retired Federal Employees met Jan. 9 at Charlie's Restaurant in Granite City, with 51 in attendance.

First Vice President Gene Ross called the meeting to order, and the invocation was given by Past President Willard Messer.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mardell Folks, and the treasurer's report was given by Helen Martin.

Service Officer Georgina McMillan announced that the notice received by members from OPM should be retained for future reference. It contains post office boxes and phone numbers to use in making inquiries. She suggested members call (202) 632-5695 concerning the Federal Income Tax Withholding Form W-4P-A if they have questions concerning income tax being withheld from annuity checks. McMillan also advised members that they could call (202) 632-6714 or 6720 if they have not received a form on catastrophic insurance rebates on premiums.

Ross noted that the NARFE Washington letter of Dec. 27 stated that the national press is beginning to take note of the mounting dissatisfaction with the Medicare Catastrophic Health Care Law. He reported that both the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal have reported that many senators and representatives are hearing negative reactions to the law from their constituents.

The letter also stated that, "NARFE is mobilizing a major lobbying effort to correct this new law. The NARFE national headquarters will be mailing a membership action plan on this issue to all chapters in January."

St. Mary's group humming with activity

St. Ann's Altar Society of St. Mary's Church held its monthly meeting Jan. 24 in the school cafeteria.

The Rev. Jim Keefner led the group in prayer, followed by a slide show on "Right to Life" presented by Sister Bernadette.

President Kathryn Butkovich conducted the meeting. Plans were made to hold a Spring Quilt Social on May 7 in Engelbert Hall.

Keefner discussed the annual church picnic to be held in June. A chairman or couple are being sought to coordinate the event. New ideas about booths and fund-raising for the picnic are also being sought.

School expenses were discussed. A study committee is gathering information and will make a recommendation in the near future.

A need for more volunteers for bingo was mentioned along with donations of cake for the Monday night games.

The white elephant was won by Sister Bernadette. Keefner gave the closing prayer. Games were played and refreshments served.

Hostesses were Catherine Mesaki, Fannie Malon and Mary Mehele. Hostesses for the February meeting will be Lucille Mossa, Pat Lee, Catherine Orris and Helen Pappa.

Others in attendance were: Laura Hopfinger, Mary A. Bunk, Mary Domanski, Cecil Kowalczyk, Elsie Kmetz, Winnie

Dorothy Davis was welcomed as a new member of the club.

The next meeting will be Feb. 14, with Burdine Holtzschler hosting. Current events will be discussed.

Those present were: Bartel, Mary Ann Cochran, Betty Harman, Bess Henley, Lois Holsinger, Holtzschler, Jerry Jackson, John, Catherine Schnipper, Connie Strotheide, Ruth Seymour, Verna Stuart, Davis and Hannah Kleinschmitt, guest.

Uplands add to bottoms' woes

To the editor:

In expressing my displeasure over the operations of the Metro East Sanitary District, I have voiced these concerns with the Chamber of Commerce, the Flood Committee and elected officials, both state and local, that are pushing the MESD tax increase.

It would be most unfair to force the people who live in Granite City, Nameoki Township, Madison, Venice or other bottomland communities to pay for ever-increasing flood protection systems to handle the runoff.

There is a limit to how much upland progress the bottomland residents can support, whether it is surface or underground water. The problem is beyond the resources or jurisdiction of any smaller government entity.

The MESD was set up to maintain the Mississippi River pump stations with the aid of the Corps of Engineers for the protection of the East St. Louis and Granite City areas, which lie in the flat river bottoms or floodplain.

The Corps of Engineers under the authority of Public Law 99 can expend funds in flood emergency preparedness in the repair or restoration of any flood control work threatened or destroyed by flood.

This being the case, why hasn't the Corps of Engineers done those things in Washington to repair the alleged faulty flood control system? It's been over two years since East St. Louis and Sauget flooded.

I would think that is more important than the meetings with the Levee Board on how to raise our taxes. There is no way our small area can pick up the price tag to correct the problems of the Mississippi River.

The Corps of Engineers made an inspection of an East St. Louis floodgate one year before the flood, October 1985, which stated "roller and shutter gates stuck in open position. They recommended some rust prevention. The Levee District knew of the problem and did nothing."

An engineering report said that the failed sluice gate and the failure of three flood control pumps that flooded hundreds of East St. Louisans and Sauget residents from their homes was corroded and in danger of failure about three weeks before the flood.

The report was issued by Hurst-Rosche Engineers Inc. of Hillsboro, hired by MESD. The report was titled MESD Improvements of Storm Drainage System. The document specifically cited the gates as being corroded. Failure of the gate to properly seal would immobilize pumps due to back flow. The MESD did not read the report.

In view of the above mentioned negligent agencies, I cannot in good faith back the MESD tax.

Playing games with raises

To the editor:

There has to be a better way to determine the salaries of members of Congress, and of state legislators.

We now play games with the process.

At the Congressional level a system has been devised that in theory is a good system. Have a committee appointed by the President determine the salary, and unless Congress votes it down in 30 days, it is law.

Two years ago that resulted in an increase of $12,100 because the final vote taken in the House came one day after the deadline.

The courts ruled — properly — that the House had failed to meet the requirement of the law to stop the increase.

I voted against the increase two years ago and I shall vote against this increase.

It is too much, considering our huge budget deficit, and sets the wrong example.

That is the main argument I hear against it. It is a valid argument.

But an even more important argument against it in my opinion, is that it removes members of Congress a little farther from the pains and struggles of the average citizen.

As salaries go up, fewer and fewer members of Congress have to struggle to meet car payments or mortgage payments, and fewer have to sweat to get their children through college.

Combine that removal from reality with our corrupting system of campaign financing and it becomes less and less likely that Congress will respond to the needs of the least fortunate among us.

Modifying the honorarium system, where members speak to groups for a fee — or sometimes just show up for a fee — is desirable. I welcome that.

State legislative bodies generally have a requirement that any pay increase cannot take effect until a new legislative session is sworn in.

That sounds good, but the restraint is

But legislative bodies get around it by meeting after a general election, voting themselves a pay raise when they are safely shielded from the wrath of the voters.

Voting on your own pay is an awkward system at best.

Is there a sensible answer?

One suggestion I am considering at the federal level — and I would be interested in your reaction — is to have a Constitutional amendment that says a commission shall set the compensation of Congress, but it shall never be raised more than the rate of inflation.

The recent raise proposal has caused a storm.

Under this proposal, the pay of Congress could not have been raised more than 4.2 percent, the rate of inflation for 1988, instead of being raised 30 percent.

It stops the games that are now being played, charges that only deepen public cynicism about public officials.

U.S. SEN. PAUL SIMON
Democrat-Illinois

Costello against pay hike

To the editor:

This letter is in response to a recent article that ran on the editorial page about my "unique situation" regarding President Reagan's pay raise recommendation for members of Congress. My response is, I couldn't agree more.

It is a unique situation. When I ran for the House, I said I would oppose any pay raise for members of Congress. Shortly after I was re-elected, President Reagan accepted the recommendations of the Quadrennial Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries, proposing to raise Congressional salaries to $135,000. I am now in a position to oppose the pay raise.

Legitimate arguments can be made which contend that competitive salaries for upper-level members of the executive, legislative and judicial branch need to keep up with inflation if we are to draw young, bright people to public service.

However, a "hump-sum" pay increase of 50 percent is something I think most Americans find hard to swallow.

That is why I have co-sponsored legislation to make these adjustments cost-of-living-increases, with the percentage equal to the "COLAs" of Social Security benefits. These modest increases keep salaries competitive, just as they protect the entitlements of the elderly against the ravages of inflation.

A freshman congressman is often advised to remain in the background on an issue of this type. But a pay increase of this magnitude does not sit well with me or my constituency.

I hope the leadership of the House will bring the pay raise issue up for a vote before Feb. 7. I will vote against the pay raise.

If there is not an opportunity to vote, I support legislation which would, if passed at a later date, nullify the increase.

I believe we need to take a fresh look at the payment system for all high-level government officials. That is why I am joining other House colleagues in opposing the pay raise now, and why I will work to reform the system in the future.

Why do city officials need more?

To the editor:

About the raises our city officials want and get —

Why do they need more money anyway? Is this going to help them to do their jobs better? Like cleaning up our city, the alleys, back yards, and the old rundown houses that are an eyesore.

Some of our streets are a mess. There is a lot of trash taken care of, streets being fixed, but what was done?

Taking time to have your picture taken in nearly every issue of the paper is time that could be used to get things done.

What are the duties of the city officials? Do they have an answering service that says, "Not here right now; leave a message when you hear the beep?"

Whose side is the City Council on?

Animal law needs to be equitable

To the editor:

I am writing this letter in response and affirmation to the letter appearing in the Press-Record regarding City Ordinance 6.08.020. I also own a spayed female dog and was outraged not about the amount of the fee, but the obvious discrimination to dog owners, especially owners of females.

I contacted Aldermen Dan Partney and Jeff Worthen on the evening I received my notice. I found out there is no ordinance which includes cats of either sex, and also inquired about the discrimination to owners of female dogs (spayed or otherwise).

I was assured by Alderman Worthen that, though this law could not be changed until spring, it most certainly will be changed and that it will probably encompass owners of "animals," not just dogs as previously stated.

I was also told that the fee would most likely not be based on the sex of the animal but rather on its ability to reproduce.

I hope that the City Council as a whole is aware that many owners of female dogs are most unhappy with this obvious discrimination and that they can see the need for a more equitable law.

Raises given in city while poverty grows

To the editor:

(Following is an open letter to the mayor and City Council.)

Why did you people vote for pay raises in this city government, when we have people in this city living at or below the poverty level? Are you hypocrites by your greedy ways?

Why do you not provide decent employment to the disadvantaged citizens in this city before voting in pay raises for city officials? Shame on you greedy people. Disgusting.

You greedy people do not deserve pay raises. Officials do not deserve pay raises if they deliberately neglect the disadvantaged, unemployed people in this city. We do not like their ways.

We do not need such leaders in city government positions — plain and simple truth.

Maybe we need a city manager or a manager-council type of city government.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

If a person is injured and he is able to show that another party was negligent, this may not be sufficient to establish liability. The party who was harmed will also have to demonstrate that the wrongdoer's negligence was a "proximate cause" of the injury. A "proximate cause" is one which produces the injury through a "continuous sequence of events" with no subsequent independent act causing the harm. A recent case will help illustrate this requirement of proximate cause.

In this matter, a woman was hospitalized for surgery. She was placed on an operating room table, and an independently employed nurse knocked over an IV pole with a glass bottle attached. The bottle landed on the woman's mouth and caused dental injuries. The victim sued the hospital and alleged negligence on its part in using a glass IV bottle rather than a soft plastic bag.

The hospital attempted to have the case dismissed on the ground that the use of the glass IV bottle was not a "proximate cause" of the plaintiff's injuries. The hospital argued that the independently employed nurse was an "intervening cause." It felt the independent act of the nurse in knocking over the pole was the proximate cause of the injury rather than any negligence which could be attributed to the hospital.

The Court agreed with the hospital's position and granted a summary judgment in favor of the medical facility. The Appellate Court affirmed the decision of the trial court, and noted that the proximate cause was the independent act of the nurse rather than the hospital's use of the glass bottle. The Court went on to state that even if the hospital were negligent here, its negligence in using a glass bottle rather than a plastic bag merely furnished a condition which made the injury possible. It was the independent act of the nurse in knocking over the pole which was the "proximate cause" of the injury. Thus, there was no liability on the part of the hospital.

Can't happen? Yes it can

"It can't happen here." If the Feb. 28 flood election loses, that attitude may be the main reason.

The Mississippi River did flood part of East St. Louis in 1966; one person drowned. The deteriorating North Pump Station proves that the Granite City area could flood. Cahokia also is vulnerable.

"Some might want to vote for it, but not properly owners." Property owners in the most to lose, other than human life. Home values would plummet sharply if mortgages can't be obtained, and that's exactly what will happen if there is a "no" vote, the St. Louis Engineer District says (in writing).

"The Metro East Sanitary District can't be trusted to do the job right." Wrong. It's the Army Corps of Engineers (not the MESD) who will award all contracts and supervise all work in the $31 million project.

And under a new Illinois law, all of the maintenance done by the MESD will be closely coordinated with and observed by the Illinois Department of Transportation and Division of Waterways.

"The cost would be too high." The cost would be low, especially when compared with the cost if federal funds are not utilized.

"We can get the federal money anytime." False. It will be allocated elsewhere unless there is a "yes" vote here this month.

Madison youths need push

Occasionally it takes only the brazenness of one particular person to force change in a system. And we hope the recent words of Madison High School Principal Bob Mehelic do just that.

Mehelic recently told the District 12 school board something we're sure the members didn't want to hear: There's apathy in his school. A bad case of it.

The principal flat out told the board that his staff is becoming alarmed by the number of failing grades in the last few years.

"We're not having a problem with students who do work and do it poorly," Mehelic said. "The problem is students who do no work at all."

Mainly because of incomplete assignments and missed tests, Mehelic said, 50 percent of the sophomore class and about 45 percent of the freshman class received at least one "F" during the first grading period of this school year. That is a horrible report.

Prepare for execution debate

Metro East has not avoided the kinds of crimes that sometimes lead to execution of those who are responsible. But shifting public sentiment and judicial opinion have resulted in a cessation of capital punishment in Illinois since 1962.

The question of whether to execute persons convicted of heinous crimes has become a leading topic of discussion due to the highly-publicized electrocution last week of Ted Bundy in Florida. He admitted more than 20 slayings and authorities think the total probably was 50 — a testament not only to his skill at escaping confinement but also to his ability to win the trust of unsuspecting victims.

Because the appeal process is so lengthy, it can be predicted that Illinois may have one, but no more than one, execution in 1989 despite the fact that its existing capital punishment law is 12 years old and that federal courts have been finding fewer reasons lately to overturn death sentences.

The Illinois Supreme Court has made its position clear. It affirmed the 1977 statute in 1981 and has reaffirmed it nearly 60 times since. However, the U.S. Supreme Court has never reviewed the current Illinois law.

Charles Walker, convicted of killing a Mascoutah couple in a 1983 armed robbery, has asked to be executed without further delay. It could happen if a federal appeals court in Chicago upholds a lower court.

There are 118 men on death row in Illinois, all housed at the Menard and Pontiac prisons. Some people regard this kind of waiting as constitutionally-banned cruel and unusual punishment. Some feel society cannot justify taking human life regardless of what crime may have occurred. Some say delay is wrong, but not the penalty; they would prefer that governmental officials get on with the process.

The pendulum may be swinging back toward implementing the death penalty in this state. There is little or no rejoicing over such a prospect, no matter which side of the debate a person may take. But Illinoisans of all viewpoints soon may need to prepare themselves for the emotional trauma associated with the topic.

Giving Tree givers helped many

To the editor:

Every year K-mart helps us provide gifts for many children at Christmas by having the Giving Tree.

We have always expressed our gratitude to K-mart for carrying out this project but we have never tried to thank the wonderful people who buy the gifts for the children whose names they select from the Tree.

We are hoping you will publish this letter so that all of the individuals who provided the toys and clothes will see it and know that their thoughtfulness and kindness brought the spirit of Christmas to many children.

Many other organizations and individuals provided us with toys, baskets, clothing, and cash to help us in our work and our wish for all of the generous, sharing people in the community is that God's peace and love will be with them throughout this new year.

Catholic schools congratulated

To the editor:

Catholic School Week is Jan. 29-Feb. 4. Congratulations to the Catholic schools. A parish school provides "continuation of the Catholic faith into adulthood."

Even more vital than mathematics skills are the basic faith values a child will learn in a Catholic school. "That's what will pull you through adult life."

Congratulations to the competent and dedicated teaching staffs.

Security cuts not fix for deficit

To the editor:

President George Bush has no greater challenge than dealing with the nation's federal budget deficit.

Despite the campaign rhetoric, it is obvious that his "flexible freeze" proposal cannot possibly, by itself, eliminate that enormous deficit. Now that the election is over, we are going to have to face fiscal reality.

In 1987, Congress created a 12-member bipartisan panel of lawmakers and business and labor leaders called the National Economic Commission (NEC). The commission has been asked to recommend to the new president and Congress steps to help reduce the federal deficit.

We recognize that these steps will be painful, but we trust that they will be fair. We think all citizens, particularly those who benefit from the tax breaks of the past eight years — should bear some of the burden in bringing down the deficit.

Unfortunately, if the remarks made in September by NEC co-chairman Robert Strauss are any indication, the commission may be looking for "quick fixes" rather than making hard choices.

Strauss suggested at an economics conference that the NEC may recommend cutting Social Security to reduce the budget deficit, "because that's where the money is."

Social Security has always been a tempting target for budget-cutters seeking "simple" solutions. But, as noted satirist H.L. Mencken so eloquently put it, "For every problem there is the solution which is simple, neat — and wrong."

The fact is that Social Security is not responsible for our current budget deficit; it is a self-financing program that is building reserves to meet future needs.

America's current deficit was caused by the effects of the 1981 tax cut, combined with increases in military spending and in interest payments on the growing national debt.

Cuts in Social Security benefits, while hurting millions of low-income and disabled Americans, would not solve the problem. Under the law, any savings that would derive from Social Security cuts could not be used to pay directly for expenditures in the general budget, but would instead simply add to Social Security's reserve.

There's another compelling reason not to tamper with the Social Security program. Strauss was correct when he said that Social Security is "where the money is. But the money is right where it's supposed to be. It's there" because it will be needed for future generations of retirees.

In 1983, our nation decided that the "pay-as-you-go" system — in which payroll taxes paid by workers go directly to retirees, survivors and disabled persons in the form of benefit checks — would be insufficient to meet the needs of future retirees, particularly members of the "baby boom" generation who will begin retiring in about 20 years.

Therefore, a conscious decision was made to build up the reserves in the Social Security trust fund in order to assure future generations of the nation's ability to make good on its retirement promises.

It would be foolish and shortsighted for America to renege on its longstanding commitment to current and future retirees because of the short-term pressures of deficit debates.

In fact, the best way for today's working Americans to ensure that Social Security will be there for them when they retire is to join with today's retirees in sending a message to our nation's politicians: Leave Social Security alone!

A shocking display of inhumanity

Ted Bundy was one of the more vicious serial killers of this century. Still, I have to ask myself if the going-away party thrown outside the gates of Florida State Prison in the hours before his execution was any less vicious than the man himself.

The display of revelry leading up to the throwing of the switch was not a childish display for the TV cameras. It was a shocking scene from a not-so-great American play.

These weren't mourners perched in vigil. These were piranhas poised for a feast.

One placard, "Ride the Current Bundy," said another. Those who signs I remember most were the rapidly spinning camera, but banners covered the site, much like a scene from Yankee Stadium.

Ted Bundy brought notoriety to Starke, Fla. He also attracted the crazies.

On Tuesday, Jan. 24, 1989, a life ended in the electric chair. The body was a victim of a 2,000-volt surge of electricity; the soul was a victim of a life that soured midway through.

Bundy's life — and death — has been written about exhaustively. His TV mini-series drew big ratings. We followed all of it with the morbid curiosity of our human nature. And when the Deliberate Stranger was put to rest, throngs cheered on the hillside.

What value do we place on human life? Ted Bundy placed little, and he said in his final interview that he deserved the maximum punishment. Many agreed. But there is a difference between carrying out the law and throwing a party at the scene of a death.

When the multitudes gathered to cheer the electrocution they were not memorializing Bundy's victims. Through thoughtlessness, they were perpetuating the very evil that the killer brought into the world.

Technologically, culturally, morally we have advanced a great deal since the days when we cheered arena fights to the death.

Or have we?

Wabash: Idea whose time's come

GRANITE CITY — Wabash Place is a 16-home luxury development being built on a little more than six acres at the south end of Wabash Avenue.

With its grand opening more than two weeks away, there are already six houses under construction and only about three lots left.

"It's amazing, the market for $100,000-plus homes," said John Blasingame, Coldwell Banker Star Realtors. "It was a market we didn't realize was available." Blasingame said the Wabash Avenue area had always been considered for development as multi-family dwellings until Bob Simon of Granite City came up with the idea for a luxury development.

"Before, people looking for these types of homes went to Collinsville or Edwardsville. Bob came in and now they're right here," Blasingame said.

"I think it is one of the best moves ever made for the city." Two of the new homes will be open to the public Feb. 18 and 19.

The house at 3120 Wabash Ave. is a 1½-story brick and frame house with four bedrooms and 2½ baths.

It features a great room with a wood-burning fireplace, a built-in kitchen and pantry, a laundry room, a full basement and an attached two-car garage. Its price is $125,000.

The house at 3 Cobblestone Court is a two-story brick and frame with four bedrooms and 2½ baths.

It has a great room with fireplace and built-in kitchen and also features a family room, a formal dining room and a breakfast room. There is a full basement. The residence has an attached two-car garage and is priced at $135,000.

Both homes are equipped with many other features such as ceiling fans, intercoms and a central vacuum cleaner. Both are completely landscaped.

The subdivision's single entrance is on Wabash Avenue and is marked by a sign designed by Wagner Sign Co., Granite City.

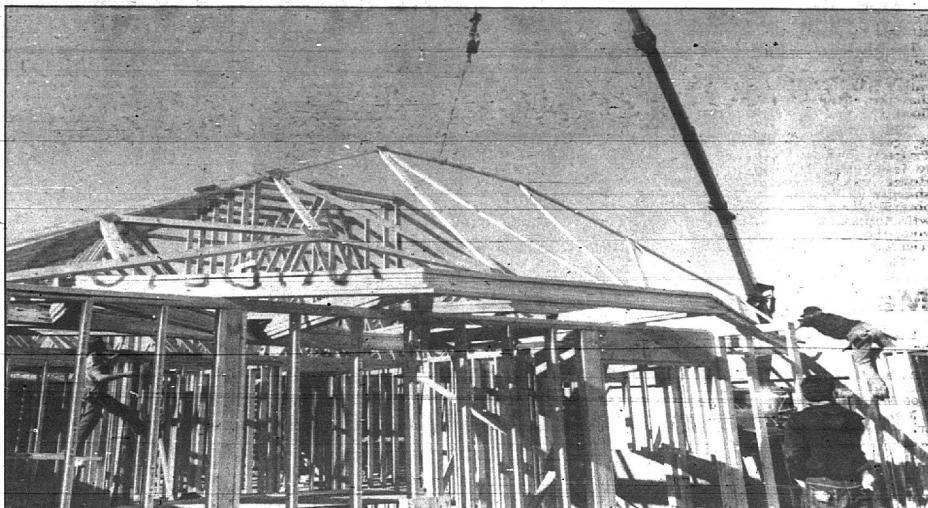

It consists of two streets ending in cul-de-sacs, Wabash Avenue and Cobblestone Court.

Landscaping, designed by Sugarloaf Nursery, Edwardsville, is currently being planted. The subdivision is designed with all underground utilities and city services.

All of the Wabash homes currently under construction are being built by Tom Briley of T and S Construction of Granite City.

Marketing is handled by Simon with Coldwell Banker Star Realtors. Financing for the development was provided by United Illinois Bank, Collinsville. Briley and Simon have said their intention is to build high-quality homes with affordable prices.

"I believe that in two months all the lots will be sold," Blasingame said. "And in two years I expect it to be completely built."

WABASH PLACE DEVELOPMENT continues this week as carpenters, aided by a crane, place a roof truss on a house under construction. Six homes have already been built and only three lots remain available in the 16-lot luxury development at the south end of Wabash Avenue. (Staff photo by Patrick Foley)

BPW offers scholarships

Since 1970, scholarships offered through the BPW Foundation have provided financial assistance to mature women seeking the education necessary for entry into or advancement within the workforce.

BPW offers five scholarships: The BPW Career Advancement Scholarship, awarded to women age 25 or older; the Clairol Scholarship, awarded to women age 30 or older; the Avon Products Foundation Scholarship for Careers in Sales, awarded to women heads of households who are supporting one or more dependents, and pursuing education leading to careers in sales; the St. Paul Foundation Scholarship, awarded to black women; and the New York Life Foundation Scholarship for Women in the Health Professions, awarded to women seeking the education necessary for a career in a health-care field.

Scholarship applicants must be women age 25 or older, a U.S. citizen, demonstrate critical need for financial assistance, be officially accepted into an accredited program or course of study at an accredited U.S. institution, be graduating within 24 months, and be seeking a terminal degree — e.g., training must lead to entry or re-entry into the workforce.

BPW scholarships do not cover study at the doctoral level (except law and medical students) or correspondence courses.

The New York Life Foundation Scholarships do not cover any study at the graduate level.

Scholarships are awarded for a one-year period to cover tuition, fees, and school-related expenses such as child care and transportation. The awards range from $500 to $1,000.

About 150 scholarships are awarded twice a year. The deadlines are Sept. 15 and April 15.

Applications, as well as supporting materials, must be postmarked by these deadline dates.

The application form has been revised but is now available. For an application form, a self-addressed business-size envelope may be sent with 45 cents postage to the Scholarship Department, BPW Foundation, 2012 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

BPW Foundation also offers two loan programs: a BPW/Sears-Roebuck Loan Fund for Women in Graduate Business and a BPW Loan Fund for Women in Engineering.

Interest of 7 percent per year begins after graduation. Loans are repaid in five equal (yearly) installments commencing 12 months after graduation.

Both business and engineering loan applicants must be U.S. citizens, have written notice of College Schools of Business, have academic and/or work experience records showing career motivation and ability to complete the course of study, and demonstrate financial need.

For further information, contact the Scholarship Department of BPW Foundation at (202) 283-1200 or 2012 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

STRAIGHT TALK ABOUT THE SAFETY OF YOUR SAVINGS

The plain fact is that the great majority of America's savings institutions, including State Loan and Savings, are soundly, prudently, and profitably managed. What's more, they maintain adequate reserves to protect against losses.

State Loan and Savings has been built on sound management and conservative policies. They have helped serve our community since 1919.

STATE LOAN AND SAVINGS Association is strong and successful and your federally insured deposits are safe and secure.

State Loan and Savings Association ranks among the top savings institutions in the country with reserves that far exceed regulatory requirements.

Most savings institutions ARE healthy.

You may have also read that a small number of institutions are experiencing problems. But the institutions that hold 90% of total industry assets are financially sound and this includes State Loan and Savings.

The important thing to bear in mind is this: the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government — and indeed, of the United States itself — will continue to stand behind insured deposits here at State Loan and Savings and at thousands of financial institutions from coast to coast.

You can also count on State Loan and Savings to make sure that the deposits you entrust to our care are as safe as money can be. Your financial security will always be our most important concern.

PAST PRESIDENTS and other historical figures vie to be a composition subject in "Historical Hysteria."

History happens at Niedringhaus

When Jenny, a fifth-grader, can't decide what to write about for a school composition, characters from history take it upon themselves to convince her that they are the best subject.

The play "Historical Hysteria" was recently performed by Becky Miller's fifth-graders at Niedringhaus School.

Several historical characters attempt to convince "Jenny" to write about them and their accomplishments. But the attempts of these characters are in vain. What they never allowed Jenny to explain was that the assignment was to write about Jenny's role in the future, not a history paper.

The historical figures have traveled many miles/years for nothing, except to remind that the world would be a different place today if not for their accomplishments.

Among Jenny's (played by Mandy Schermer) "visitors" were:

Samuel Adams (Keith Brake), Paul Revere (Sarah Gouy), Betty Ross (Amelia Galbreath), Sally Ride (Jennifer Offit), Ben Franklin (Patrick Schuman), Harriet Tubman (Amelia Galbreath).

Thompson declares February month of community college

Gov. James R. Thompson signed a resolution proclaiming February 1989 as Illinois Community College Month.

Each of Illinois' 50 community colleges will celebrate the month with a variety of special activities.

Locally, the Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College, 4905 Maryville Road, will be holding a variety of activities throughout the month.

"Dickens You Say," a story on the life of Charles Dickens, will be performed by Dr. Elliot Engel at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 7, in the cafeteria. Admission is free.

Career decision-making seminars will be held from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Feb. 8, 9, 15 and 22. Reservations for the seminars can be made by calling 931-0600. At 7 p.m. Feb. 15 a financial aid information program will be held.

Some successful alumni of Illinois community colleges include actor Jim Belushi; U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello; Constance T. Rockingham, dean of students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville; Kirby Puckett, an outfielder for the Minnesota Twins; and John Sisco, presidential advisor for Middle East negotiations.

Facts about Illinois' community colleges include:

•The first public community college in the United States was established in Joliet in 1901.

•The 50 community colleges in 39 districts cover 7,244 acres of land and occupy 17.13 million square feet of completed buildings.

•More than 328,000 students were enrolled in credit classes at Illinois community colleges during the fall term in 1988.

•In fiscal year 1987, a full-time student at an Illinois community college paid an average of $768 in annual tuition and fees, averaging $25.60 per credit hour.

•Community colleges' economic development initiatives helped create 8,525 Illinois jobs and to retain 13,190 jobs in fiscal year 1987, for a total of 21,815.

Number of farms declining in area

By Scott Cousins
Staff affiliate

The number of farms in Madison and St. Clair counties has decreased by slightly more than 13 percent in the last five years, according to statistics released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

During that period the amount of farmland in the two-county area also decreased slightly.

The average size of the farms remaining increased.

Kelly Henningsen, an agricultural statistician with the Illinois Agricultural Statistical Service, a part of the USDA, said the information was compiled as part of a five-year farm census.

She said the local figures were close to the state averages, although in all three categories averages from this area were slightly higher.

From 1982 to 1987, the total number of acres being farmed in Madison and St. Clair counties decreased 2.8 percent, to 601,521 from 615,373 acres. That decrease was greatest in St. Clair County, which lost 3.9 percent of its farmland.

County the farm acreage decreased 1.9 percent.

The state average showed a decrease of less than 1 percent.

According to Ron Cornwell, University of Illinois extension adviser for Madison County, area farmland is being lost to both residential and highway development.

The number of farms in the two-county area decreased to 2,601 from 2,996, or 13.2 percent. Statewide, the number fell 9.3 percent, to 88,786.

Locally, the decrease was largest in Madison County, where the number of farms fell to 1,500 from 1,735, a 13.5 percent drop. St. Clair County showed a 12.9 percent decrease, to 1,101 from 1,263.

Both Cornwell and Tom Jett, manager of the St. Clair County Farm Bureau, agreed there were several reasons.

Both said retirement played a big part in the decrease.

"We've had a lot of farmers retire," Cornwell said. "If there is not a son to take over operations, the farm is usually dispersed or sold."

Cornwell also said financial problems in the farming industry have caused some farmers to simply get out of the business.

"The five-year period reflected (in the census) has been one of the roughest for farmers," he said.

Jett said he didn't think the economy has had a big effect on the number of St. Clair County farmers.

"We've had our share of (financial) problems," he said. "But for the most part farmers in this area are fairly conservative so they've avoided some of the financial problems other farmers have faced."

Both Cornwell and Jett said the decrease in the number of farms has led to an increase in the size of the farms remaining.

During the five-year period of the census the average size of farms in the two counties increased to 234 acres from 210 acres, a 12.3 percent increase.

Throughout the state, farm sizes increased by about 9.5 percent.

"That's part of a trend we've been seeing since the 1950s," Jett said.

Cornwell said he expects the trends to continue, but said they will probably slow.

Let college survive its cure

"No one's going to vote for it," U.S. Sen. Fritz Hollings said this week about the proposal for a fee on deposits at savings-and-loans.

Many Metro East people hope for a similar attitude by the Illinois General Assembly toward a proposal that would combine Belleville Area College and State Community College.

BOTH DISTRICTS would be harmed by a merger, it is felt. SCC property owners would have to start paying college taxes; BAC would be given a larger task to perform without a sufficient increase in revenue.

The officials and legislators who set up SCC in the first place concluded that the East St. Louis tax base was not big enough to finance the college, so they established direct state funding.

The tax base has eroded further since then, indicating that the SCC area still cannot afford to operate a college primarily from real estate taxes.

SOME LAWMAKERS and the Legislative Audit Commission are unhappy because they feel appropriate procedures have not been followed in the way State Community College is operated, although funded by the state, SCC has a local board which hires the staff.

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

This displeasure at Springfield led to the idea last fall of combining SCC as a state-funded college but with Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville operating it.

This seemed sensible because SIUE has considerable administrative skill and is fully familiar with East St. Louis due to the university's long experience in operating a satellite university in East St. Louis.

The Press-Record/Journal endorsed the idea Dec. 15 in an editorial entitled "New state college leadership."

THE ILLINOIS Community College Board in mid-January unveiled the idea of putting SCC into BAC, the multiple-county district that surrounds it. This might look neat and even artistic in a statewide map of the 39 community college districts but otherwise it doesn't add up.

BAC's turbulence in the past several years doesn't need to be retold in agonizing detail to make this point:

Some on the BAC board are seen by the public as hating the idea of healthy campuses other than at Belleville; each penny is approved begrudgingly.

If there is any truth to this, could BAC be counted on to treat East St. Louis fairly?

ASIDE FROM this prospect of unfairness and friction within the merged district is the inherent unfairness of starting to collect college taxes from East St. Louis without any guarantee of better instruction for them.

Compared to the service they have received until now, SCC residents would face a significant new cost while possibly getting no added benefit.

Another alternative discussed by legislators is to close SCC, but this also is an unattractive option, it would reduce the residents' access to college classes.

IN PRESCRIBING remedies, doctors who take the Hippocratic oath pledge first to do no harm to their patients.

There is hope that the statewide community college board and administration, in "curing" SCC, won't perform such spectacular surgery that the "patient" dies.

Let's not throw out the baby with the bath water.

SIUE constructs wildlife center expansion

The Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Student Chapter of Associated General Contractors has adopted the Treehouse Wildlife Center Inc. of Brighton as a community service and educational experience project.

The Treehouse Wildlife Center is a non-profit, volunteer organization dedicated to the preservation of native American wildlife.

It is a hospital for injured or orphaned wildlife found in the bi-state area and is an environmental educational center.

Arts Council plans workshops on grants

The Illinois Arts Council in cooperation with local arts organizations will hold statewide grantsmanship workshops for arts organizations, including a 6 p.m. two-hour session Feb. 8 at the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville East St. Louis campus.

The free workshops will be held in conjunction with the March 15 application deadline for the Program Grants for Organizations. Those who wish more information may call 1-800-237-6994.

State news

State expands its war on drug abuse, crime

The Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority on Friday approved a plan to spend more than $4.8 million in federal funds to control drug abuse and violent crime in the state.

The plan includes allocations to the following programs: $700,000 to expand the state's metropolitan enforcement groups and drug task forces to allow the 19 drug enforcement units currently operating to expand their service areas, add equipment or personnel, and attack special drug problems in their areas; more than $1.3 million to conduct large-scale investigations and prosecutions of upper-echelon drug traffickers and to initiate asset forfeiture proceedings.

Also, more than $500,000 to continue expansion programs at the State Police and Chicago Police crime laboratories; $150,000 to continue the McGruff crime prevention campaign, with a focus on drug abuse education and prevention, and more than $140,000 for an equipment arsenal from which local law enforcement agencies can borrow sophisticated gear, such as surveillance equipment, for drug investigations.

Chicago, Kansas City road consultants hired

Financial and engineering consultants have been chosen to determine if it is feasible to build a toll road linking Chicago and Kansas City. The selections were made by a bi-state policy committee.

A financial team headed by Price Waterhouse of Washington, D.C., and an engineering team headed by Howard Needles Tammen and Bergendoff with offices in Chicago and Kansas City have been selected to look into the building of the 400-mile, multiple toll road, which would link the two cities by way of Peoria. Estimated cost of each contract is $200,000. The highway is estimated to cost $2.5 billion.

Trip to LA planned to attract film industry

Gov. James Thompson said Monday that he and business agents representing Illinois' four film unions will meet with film industry executives in Los Angeles this week to bolster efforts to attract additional film business to Illinois.

"In the 14 years since the Illinois Film Office was established, Illinois has become one of the top on-location film centers in the country," Thompson said.

Four features will be on-location in the state in the first three months of this year: "The Package," starring Gene Hackman; "Uncle Buck," to be directed by Chicago native John Hughes; "The Music Box," starring Jessica Lange, and "Deadlines," a feature by Kingsley Celluloid II, a Chicago production company.

Gold Medal winner to be Lincoln laureate

East St. Louis native Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Gold Medal winner in the 1988 Summer Olympics, will be among five prominent Illinoisans to be presented the state's highest honor — the Lincoln Laureate — on April 22 in ceremonies to be held at Illinois State University in Normal.

Others to be honored are: Geraldine Freund of Chicago, art patron and founder of the International Dance Festival; Hanna Gray of Chicago, president of the University of Chicago; Dr. John E. Corbally of Chicago, former president of the University of Illinois and president of the MacArthur Foundation; and Eugene D. Funk Jr. of Bloomington, agriculturist and former president of Funk Brothers Seed Co.

Psalm 23:3 "He restoreth my soul."

This is one of the most quoted Scripture verses of the Bible. What a message comes flowing through this statement! When we magnify God, exalt Him, lift Him up in praise, He will in turn exalt you! All things work together for good to them who love God. God knows what he is doing in your life. He can make evil turn and work for your good. He will restore your soul. Cast every Care upon him because he cares for you. Accept his Spirit now. His presence now. Feel your soul soar into his bosom, and feel it being restored! He will restore your soul. Today.

Visit Shaw's Garden in winter for bloomin' breath of spring

By Pamela Seibert
Staff affiliate

On a frosty winter day, or even a not-so-frosty one, a visit to Missouri Botanical Garden can be like a breath of spring. Many plants are in bloom at Shaw's Garden during the winter, and many of the non-blooming plants are green.

Visitors may take walking tours of The Garden. They are offered at 1 p.m. every Tuesday and Saturday, and at 2 p.m. on the first and third Sunday of each month.

"Visitors gather at the Ridge-way Center ticket booth — a guide will take out as few as two, or as many as 20," said Pat Bushman, who coordinates volunteer guides. "Then it's some what up to the visitors to determine what they'll see. If they have a special interest, such as the Japanese garden, that's where the tour will go. Tours are tailored to visitors' desires."

The Japanese garden does tend to be one of the most popular features of the garden at any time of year, Bushman said. "It's always beautiful. In the spring there are the cloud-like blooms of the cherry trees. In the winter, the garden is equally dramatic. It's monochromatic, or basically all one color," she said.

Green plants are set in amongst gray green rocks and water that reflects the same color. In an asymmetrical design, Bushman said. "This is prettier than a symmetrical garden, which is more common in the West. The garden is gorgeous when it's covered with snow. To the Japanese, snow is like a flower. Lanterns are arranged to accentuate this — it's stunning."

Fun for children at this garden are the fish in the pool, a large Japanese species similar to the catfish called "Koi."

"The fish come in all colors — red, blue, orange, yellow, white — and visitors can feed them. There's a fish-feeding station where food can be bought for ten cents, or you may bring your own bread."

Another feature of the garden visitors are sure to enjoy is the Linnean House. Built in 1882, it is the oldest greenhouse at the garden and in the United States.

"It was built by Henry Shaw himself, just after the turn of the century," Bushman said. The founder of the garden had it built originally to house his ferns and tropical plants, but it now is home to a spectacular array of camellias, she said. These plants, which have been imported from China and Japan, bloom in many shades of pink, red and white.

For another stunning display of blooms, visitors may tour the Orthwein Floral Display Hall where the annual orchid display, which runs until Feb. 26.

"Orchids are some of the most prolific plants the garden displays. All are grown in greenhouses right on the grounds," Bushman said. "People come from all over the world to see them."

According to the tropical flavor, thatched huts and a waterfall are included in this display.

If the visitor is bent on blooms, several winter-blooming plants may be seen in the herb garden, she said. Witch hazel, for instance, displays tiny white flowers even on the coldest days. Also, the English wood garden may be counted on for a variety of early blooming plants, she said.

Visitors may also tour Henry Shaw's home on the grounds. Displayed here are some of his clothing and furniture; the kitchen remains as it was when he lived here in the early 20th century, Bushman said.

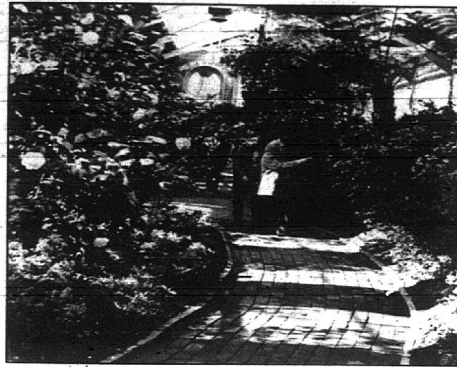

"Shaw, who was originally from Sheffield, England, owned a very successful hardware business," Bushman said. "He retired from it when he was 30, traveled to Europe, and was quite taken with the formal gardens there, especially those in England."

"When he returned to St. Louis, he purchased 79 acres of land where he built his home and designed the gardens which would later be given to the city as Missouri Botanical Garden. But Shaw allowed the gardens to be viewed by the public even while he was living there."

Shaw also is responsible for purchasing and developing the land which would become Tower Grove Park, she said.

To visit Shaw's home, there is an additional charge of $1.50 for adults, and 50 cents for children 6 to 12.

Admission to the garden at 434 Shaw Blvd. is $2 for adults, $1 for seniors, and free to children under 12. For more information, call (314) 577-5125.

THE CAMELIAS are in full bloom during February in the Linnean House at Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden.

Liberace tribute canceled by trio

Due to the serious illness of one of the Lennon Sisters, the "Tribute To Liberace" show, scheduled for June 16 to 18 at the Fox Theater in St. Louis has been canceled. The show also billed Jo Ann Castle.

The Fox has substituted Anthony Newley in concert for the same dates and hopes to announce the name of a very special guest act to open for Newley.

Representatives of the Lennon Sisters are withholding the name of the ailing member at the request of the family. An agent for the trio said they did not want to perform unless the entire group was able to work together.

On a brighter note, folks at the Fox are beaming about the pre-sale for Tennessee Ernie Ford, who is slated for April 14 to 16 at the Fox. Ford was considered to be a risky booking, but group sales for good ol' Ernie have been a pea-pickin' success.

Black History Month events to be held at SIUE

Conrad Tillard, executive director of the National Black Student Unity Congress, will speak at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville as SIUE commemorates Black History Month in February.

The theme for the monthlong series of lectures, performances and cultural events is "Black Unity." The highlight of the month is Tillard's presentation at 8 p.m. Feb. 6 in Meridian Hall.

Tillard will stress the importance of spiritually, family and community cohesiveness, cultural awareness, economic empowerment, educational advancement, and political unity in bringing about change.

Other Black History Month events include: Feb. 1, 7:30 p.m. — Ashra Kweh, discussing "African Origins of Civilizations," Lovejoy Library auditorium.

Feb. 7 — 10 a.m. — Art Show, Goshen Lounge, University Center.

Feb. 18 — 8 p.m. — Black Greek Marchdown, Meridian Hall.

Feb. 21 — 11:30 a.m. — St. Louis Black Repertory Company, "Nobody Knows," Goshen Lounge, University Center.

Court program helps abused children in St. Clair County

BELLEVEILLE — "Jimmy" is not his real name, but not many people know his real name, or even seemed to really care what it is. He was abused and neglected in his own home, severely burned in one foster home, and not allowed to go to school in another foster home.

He's 5. And he's now deaf, developmentally delayed and badly scarred from his burns. CASA Program Director Julie Fallon said she thinks some of Jimmy's problems could have been avoided if someone had looked out for his interests. Jimmy had no adults speaking up on his behalf, until his court case was assigned to a CASA volunteer.

CASA stands for "Court-Appointed Special Advocate," and refers to the individual volunteers, who are called CASAs.

According to the CASA Program's statement of philosophy and goals, "the goal of the CASA Program is to assign trained, capable volunteers to represent the interests of individual abused and neglected children in the court process."

When a CASA is appointed to help an abused or neglected child who has been removed from his or her home by the courts, the volunteer interviews the child, family members, foster family members, teachers, social workers—anyone who the advocate can get insight into the child's situation.

The CASA looks into available alternatives, such as living with relatives or placement in a foster home, and prepares a written report giving a recommendation for where the child should be permanently placed.

The CASA submits the report at least four days before the child's court hearing, and appears in court at the hearing to present the report and recommendation.

After the child is returned to his or her parents or placed permanently in a foster home, the CASA monitors the situation for 18 months to make sure everything is going OK.

Fallon said the program took its first cases in mid-November. The children come from all over St. Clair County.

"Basically we're dealing with sexual abuse and neglect cases," Fallon said. "Currently it's heavy on the sexual abuse."

Circuit Judge Milton Wharton, who handles juvenile cases in St.

Clair County, said the CASA Program is very valuable in this county, where heavy case loads make it nearly impossible for social workers and other professionals to give each child the attention he or she deserves.

In the county, each child involved in an abuse or neglect case is assigned a "guardian ad litem" to represent him or her. However, the county has only two guardians ad litem, who are lawyers with private practices, and so have very little time to devote to individual cases, Wharton said.

That's where the CASA comes in. A CASA has the time to spend with the child one-on-one, and presents the court with a report the guardian ad litem would not have the time to prepare.

"Besides Chicago, we have the largest case load of any county of abuse and neglect cases in the State of Illinois, and two guardians ad litem can't possibly go out and do the job that's expected of them," Wharton said. "With the CASA volunteers and the two lawyers, I think we can do the job."

Skoien hopes to run against Sen. Simon

CHICAGO — Although November 1990 is still 21 months away, U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, may already have a Republican challenger for his seat.

Gary Skoien, executive director of the state's Capital Development Board, said Jan. 27 he is considering running against Simon in the 1990 general election.

"I think people are interested in getting some fresh faces in Washington," Skoien, 35, said in a telephone interview from his Chicago office. Skoien lives in Palatine, a Chicago suburb.

The Capital Development Board acts on bids from construction companies for all state projects except highway work. Skoien said the agency awards contracts for about 1,000 projects annually.

David Carle, a Simon spokesman, said Simon had no comment on Skoien's announcement, adding that it is up to Republicans to decide who they want as their candidate.

Bob Goins, R-Belleveille, who ran unsuccessfully against State Rep. Monroe Fliinn, D-Cahokia, in the last general election, said he was impressed with Skoien when Skoien visited Fairview Heights in late January.

Goins admitted Skoien would have a tough time beating Simon in the Democratic stronghold of St. Clair County, and particularly in East St. Louis.

But Goins said Skoien could get enough votes in the rest of the state to pull off an upset.

Skoien acknowledged heavily Democratic St. Clair and Cook counties would be potential trouble spots should he run against Simon.

But Skoien said he may make some inroads with Cook County voters since it's his home area.

Skoien said he feels Simon's voting record doesn't reflect the thinking of Illinois voters. "He's been a little to the left of Illinois residents on defense issues," Skoien said.

"He's very interested in increasing spending in social areas. I don't disagree with that, but you can't have a 'sky's the limit' approach. He also voted against the death penalty for drug traffickers."

Skoien said he favors maintaining a strong defense and limiting the role of government in society.

Asked his opinion of the proposed joint-use civilian and military airport at Scott Air Force Base, Skoien said that, based on what he knows about the proposed expansion, he would favor it, though he hasn't made a final decision.

"I believe there's a need for more airplane landing space," Skoien said.

"You're never going to make everyone happy with these sorts of things, but I think it's obviously an economic benefit."

Skoien said he's serious about running in 1990, but his candidacy will depend on who else in the Republican Party is interested in Simon's seat, and on his ability to raise campaign funds.

"That is the single most important campaign issue," Skoien said. "Federal campaign laws are very biased in favor of the incumbent."

Skoien said that while many people do not know him, he feels he would be qualified to be a U.S. senator if he does get his party's nomination.

Before being named executive director of the Capital Development Board in August 1983, Skoien served as an assistant in Gov. James Thompson's office for three years.

He represented Thompson in discussions with state social agencies, including the Department of Mental Health and the Department of Public Health.

"My experience has been brick and mortar to human services," Skoien said.

This year Americans will produce more litter and pollution than ever before. If you don't do something about it, who will?

SIUE cagers eyeing Tim Hogan

Sports Of All Sorts

By Al Barnes

Larry Graham and his assistants at SIUE might have found a point guard for the 1989-90 season. It's none other than former Granite City High School star Tim Hogan, who has practiced with the Cougars.

Tim Hogan and his twin brother Jamie attended different colleges after starting in three sports in high school. Tim went to Eastern Illinois University to play baseball and Jamie went to SIUE to play football. Things didn't work out for them and they returned home to attend SIUE this year.

Tim was told he was welcome to report for basketball practice, but that he would have to sit out this year due to NCAA rules.

"Timmy is a real hard worker and is constantly working on his ball handling," said Graham. "We have been a little disappointed in his three-point shooting."

I watched Tim Hogan in many games in his high school career and he was an outstanding shooter from three-point range, although the three-pointer wasn't in effect in high school until last season.

Cougar baseball coach Bo Collins also has his eye on the twins.

"I watched them their senior

Cougars drop two on road

By Al Barnes

Correspondent

It's tough to win on the road, as Larry Graham and the SIUE Cougars found out Saturday and Monday.

After mauling Jackson College at home Friday, things looked rosy for the Cougars, who were ranked seventh in NCAA Division II. But the going got rough on the road. The Cougars boarded a bus to take them to Louisville for a Saturday game at Belarmine College.

It looked like a victory until a pair of three-pointers in the final 11 seconds gave the home team a 103-101 victory. The Cougars lost again Monday at Southern Indiana, 75-71, dropping their record to 15-5 and possibly out of the top 10.

year in high school and both appeared ready to play college ball," Collins said.

Jamie Hogan would like to get back into sports and is considering going back to Carbondale for another crack at the football team or possibly playing basketball or baseball at SIUE.

The twins come from an athletic family. Their grandfather, John Hogan, was one of the best football players ever at GCHS. Their father, Kelly, was an outstanding swimmer and diver.

The Screaming Eagles (12-5), who had beaten the Cougars earlier in the year, jumped out to a 7-0 lead before SIUE battled back to take a 36-28 lead at half-time. The Cougars then led 34-40 with 11:55 left. And it looked like they would escape the dangers of the road.

But with the capacity crowd getting into the game, the Screaming Eagles came back and went ahead 73-71 on two free throws by Dennis Humphrey with 2:21 left. Chris Johnson wrapped it up for the home team with two more free throws in the final seconds. And it was a long bus ride home.

Johnson led the winners with 17 points. Odell Tidwell had 15 to pace the Cougars, who return home to face Kentucky State on Saturday.

And their great-grandfather, Ace DuMotte, was an all-round athlete and an outstanding bowler.

"What I like about Timmy's play is he's a natural-born floor leader," said Cougar assistant Tim Willis. "He never appears to get rattled or rattled. He'll definitely help us."

It's my feeling that Tim Hogan's decision to play for the Cougars will be a boost for the program. His success in high school will help build a local following at SIUE games.

Hot goalie stops Warriors

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — There seemed to be a good combination going Wednesday. The Warrior hockey team played a pretty good game. And they were playing a Lafayette team which had only two victories all season.

But one part of the equation swayed things in the Lancers' favor. He wore No. 31 and his name was Mac O'Reilly. The senior goaltender stood the Warriors on their collective ears by making 29 saves while his teammates backed him with plenty of offense in a 7-3 Lafayette win.

Granite City fell to 9-9 on the season with three regular-season games to go before the playoffs. "We didn't play badly at all," said Warrior coach Garry Henson. "We outshot them (32-22), but the goalie was fantastic. O'Reilly plays for the Junior Blues and you saw why."

Mac Schaefer was the only Warrior who had any success against O'Reilly. He fired away all night and finally picked up the hat trick on a goal with two seconds left. But O'Reilly frustrated Jim Robertson on all night, including a dazzling save on Robertson's length-of-the-ice dash in the final minutes.

"We got some good efforts from some kids who aren't feeling well," Henson said. "Mike Naeve was really coughing and Robertson is sick as a dog. But they played hard."

The Lancers got a pair of goals from Mark Cory in the first period. He scored right off a faceoff at 1:06, on a power play, then scored on a breakaway at 10:12. Lafayette increased the lead to 5-0 in the second period with three rebound goals.

"We weren't clearing anybody from in front," Henson said. "O'Reilly is good enough not to give up rebounds, but we didn't have anybody to clear them away at our end."

Schaefer got a power play goal at 7:25 to break O'Reilly's shutout bid, then scored twice in the third period after Lafayette had taken a 7-1 lead.

"We still have a chance to have a 500 season, which I never thought would happen when the year started," Henson said. "But we still have some kids who haven't progressed as much as I hoped. The key is working at it in the off-season."

Before that, the Warriors will try to make some noise in the playoffs, which begin next weekend. The top two teams in each of the four divisions plus 12 wild card teams go into the playoffs. Granite City will be second in the North Division and will likely meet the wild card team with the most points in a two-game series starting Feb. 11. A team that wins both games or gets a win and a tie advances to the next round. If the two teams split, a 10-minute mini-game is played immediately following the second game. If that ends in a tie, the teams go to sudden death.

GCHS Pom Pon girls having clinic Feb. 18

The Granite City Senior High School Pom Pon girls are sponsoring an instructional clinic on basic marching and dance techniques to be held on Feb. 18 at Memorial Gymnasium.

All area children are invited to register for the clinic applicable to their age group. The first session for children attending kindergarten through third grades is scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon. The second session for grades four through eight is scheduled from 1 to 4 p.m. Each session will conclude with a demonstration for parent observation and can be photographed or videotaped. A fee of $12 is being charged for each child. Each participant will receive a red "Pom Clinic" T-shirt, a pair of small "dance" poms and a Certificate of Participation.

Advance registration will be required due to the limit on the number of children that can be accepted. Forms can be obtained from any public or private school in Granite City. For further information, call Diane Niepert (931-4066), Judy Russell (877-1058), Rosanne Rich (876-7348) or Debbie Cox (432-3338).

Boat & Sports Show has fishing seminars

This year's St. Louis Boat and Sports Show, Feb. 14-15 at the Sheraton Convention Center, will feature a series of fishing seminars by several top-ranked fishing pros. Topics covered will include bass, walleye and crappie fishing.

Steve McCadams will appear Feb. 14 at 7 p.m. McCadams is an outdoor writer and foremost authority on crappie fishing and has co-authored a publication for In-Fisherman titled "Crappie Wisdom." He is presently field editor for Hooked on Fishing magazine, a regional publication based in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Cliff Craft, a bass fishing professional, will appear on Feb. 15 at 7 p.m. Craft has given more than 450 seminars, speeches and clinics and has won several titles. He earned Angler of the Year honors in 1981 on the Hungry Fisherman circuit and has qualified for five B.A.S.S. Masters Classic world championships.

Women anglers won't want to miss the seminar being held by pro fishing superstar Linda England at 7 p.m. on Feb. 16. Winner of the "Grand Slam of Bass Fishing," which consists of the Angler of the Year, National Champion and World Champion titles, she continues to dominate the world of women's professional bass fishing. Appearing with England will be fishing pro Freda Lee. A former model and actress, Lee is now a solid competitor on the bass fishing circuit. She has qualified for three Bass 'n' Gal Classic World Championships and one Lady Bass Classic.

Another popular fishing pro and seminar speaker is Bobby Murray, who will hold seminars on Feb. 17 at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. Murray won the Bassmasters Classic in 1971 and 1978. His accomplishments include six national and 70 state/regional titles.

Popular fishing author, educator and TV personality Babe Winkelman will be at the show for seminars on Feb. 18 at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. Seminar titles are "Understanding Bass" and "Understanding Walleye." Winkelman produces and hosts the "Good Fishing" TV series and is the largest producer of "How To" videos on fishing.

Winner of the 1988 National Walleye Championship, Gary Parsons is the seminar speaker scheduled for sessions on Feb. 19 at 2 and 4 p.m. Parsons has won more than 60 walleye tournaments with numerous top finishes in the last five years. He and his brother-in-law, Keith Kaysed, also look for a place in the 1988 Manufacturers Walleye Classic.

For hunting enthusiasts, the show is also sponsoring a gamebird calling seminar by professional hunter and game caller Frank McKean. That seminar will take place at 2 p.m. on Feb. 18.

A popular attraction for all youngsters is the Huck Finn Trout Pond, where children 12 and under can try their luck at catching a live rainbow trout.

The St. Louis Boat and Sports Show features more than 400 boats, a full range of fishing equipment and tackle, marine accessories and resort information. Show hours are 5-10 p.m. Feb. 14 through Feb. 16; noon-10 p.m. Feb. 17; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Feb. 18; and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Feb. 19. Admission is $5 for adults and $2 for children under 12. For more information, call 314-567-0020.

Billy Ripken card lighting up collectors' 'scum segment'

I have seen The Card. Seen it, touched it, rolled on the carpet in the middle of a card show at the Ramada Inn South with it. I have done everything a consenting adult can do with The Card.

I suppose that means my baseball card soul is headed for Topps Hall, but I just couldn't, can't, won't buy The Card. Not ever. Not never. If I even look like I'm tempted to empty my pockets to buy The Card, you have my permission to whip me within 60 feet, 6 inches of my life.

The Card, for those who have spent the last week in some kind of post-inaugural trauma, is the 1989 Billy Ripken baseball card issued by Fleer. On this small — 2½-by-3½ inches — piece of cardboard is a photo of young Ripken posed in fairly typical Baltimore Orioles fashion. That is, he's standing with the bat resting uselessly on his shoulder. In the photo, Ripken has a let-it-over-on-his-shoulder expression on his face.

What makes that card The Card is the vile expression scrawled plainly on the bottom of the bat handle.

When I first saw The Card, I figured the obscenity was a sign of a return to the old days of baseball when everyone had a nickname. You don't see much of nicknames in baseball anymore.

Look at the World Champion Los Angeles Dodgers. What a colorful bunch they are — Orel "Orel" Hershiser and Kirk "Mr. Gibson" Gibson. Thirty years ago you couldn't even get a look from a team like the Dodgers unless you went by Schoolboy or Duke or Preacher or Pee Wee.

Things have changed. So have baseball cards. Cards no longer are flipped, attached to bike spokes or thrown in a shoe box. Chances are you'll see more kids out hanging out flipping ATT stock than flipping the Ripken card.

Why? Consider the economics of the thing. Ripken's expressionless mug gives his Fleer card the value of day-old bread. The obscenity on the bottom of the bat handle goes to the ante to approximately what it would cost you for a hot night out on the town — with twins. There are limits to how graphic I can be in describing the obscenity on Ripken's bat handle. We verbiomongers — unlike card collectors — have our standards. All I can say is the expression is two words, both begin with the letter "F," and the second word is "face."

The dirty Ripken card has lit up the scum segment of card collectors like nothing ever has. It's a price gouger's holiday. The Ripken card currently is in the $100 neighborhood — that is no misprint — and a local dealer says that if the right chump walks in the door you can get more.

I had a guy come in here today and say he saw them going for $150. Gary Schoen of Schoen's Sports Collectables said it midweek.

Schoen said the Ripken card is so hot that Fleer wax packs — the 15-card packs you typically find in stores for 40 to 50 cents — have shot up to $3.50. Schoen says he's had to set a three-pack limit on the Fleer wax packs to keep all his customers happy.

Schoen has one more rule: No Ripkens or Fleer wax packs for the kiddies.

That didn't stop a kid who came in early this week. "I told him, 'Sorry son, I'm not selling any of the wax packs to kids,'" Schoen said. "He was with his father and his dad praised me up and down and said he thought I was doing the right thing and that I had great morals...then he bought three packs and handed them to the kid to open. "What are you going to do?" Damned if I know. What I do know is I couldn't make myself spend $75, $100 or $150 for a Billy Ripken baseball card. Not ever. Not never. I can see myself showing it to my kids.

"Remember that bike you wanted for your birthday? Forget it. I got you the Billy Ripken card instead. It's worth a lot of money. Why? Well, here look what's written on the bat."

"OK, sound it out. "No, I can't tell you what that is. I think it's a nickname, yeah, that's it, a nickname." "No, no, I don't think that'd be a good nickname for grandpa. "But if you answer the phone and it's somebody trying to sell insulated windows..."

Managers meeting scheduled Feb. 15

The Granite City Park District will hold a managers meeting for anyone interested in the girls fast pitch softball league (ages 8-15). The meeting will be held at the Brown Recreation Center, 2165 Ames Ave., on Feb. 15 at 6:30 p.m.

Topics to be covered will be age requirements, general rules and the requirements for entering a team. For more information, call Wake Barber at the Wilson Park Office, 877-3059.

QCSA seeking refs for season

The spring session of the Quad Cities Soccer Association is just around the corner.

The QCSA is in need of referees for the coming season. Potential referees must be at least 13 and have a knowledge of soccer rules. Anyone interested should call 876-9000 and leave a name and phone number.

•Ven-Mad

For Madison coach Al Collins, it was another disappointing loss in what has turned out to be a very long first year as the helm. "We had a pep rally today and I think the kids got too pumped up," Collins said. "We never did get into our game. Our kids were too hyped up and we never did get into our offense or defense."

"We can't play that bad of a game and expect to beat anybody." Even on their best day the Trojans would have a very difficult time stopping the inside game of Venice. The two big seniors, 6-5 Daryl Jackson and 6-6 Hosea King, were too much for Madison to handle down low. They scored 12 points apiece in the first half to almost match Madison's 27 first-half points. They finished with a combined 41 points, and it wasn't by accident.

"I told the team to get it inside," Harris said. "I knew they couldn't stop us inside." That was apparent from the start of the game. When Jackson got a slam five minutes into the game, Venice led 12-0 and he and King had ten of those points. King finished with 20 points and 12 rebounds. Jackson had 19 points, 12 rebounds and seven assists while Erwin Claggett chipped in 17. Aaron Jones and Andre Mayes led the Trojans with 16 points apiece while Federico Walker added 14.

In the early moments of the game, there was a big game atmosphere that everyone in the gym could sense. The play was very intense and physical and the officials were letting the players play.

The Devils were more aggressive offensively, pounding the ball inside, and that led to the Trojans committing more fouls. It was hard to tell that Madison was the home team when they were whistled for the first six fouls, three of which were charges. Venice was shooting the bonus 34 seconds into the second period and was not whistled for a foul until there was 3:32 left in the first half.

The Trojans had opportunities to come back in the second half, but didn't take advantage. Both teams like to grab defensive rebounds and run out of missed baskets. Venice got easy shots in transition and made them, while Madison did not. The low point came when Madison had a three-on-one break and failed to convert.

Madison has had a tough time making easy shots all year because they refuse to bank the shot short. The Trojans would apparently rather miss a swooping Michael Jordan-esque finger roll than make the less aesthetically pleasing lay-up off the backboard.

The easy missed shots are causing Collins to age at an advanced rate.

"We had shots tonight, a lot of easy shots, we just didn't make them," he said. "We have been trying to get them to use the glass all year, but sometimes it seems like they forget everything we teach them in practice right after the opening tip."

NOTES: The Trojans (3-13) have a couple of long trips this weekend. They travel to Jacksonville for an 8 p.m. game Friday against the Crimson. Madison then plays Breesse Mater Dei in the Mater Dei Shootout at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. That game will be sandwiched by a pair of games featuring four of the state's top 16 Class A teams. No. 1 Caryle faces No. 6 Springfield Calvary at 6 p.m. and No. 13 Westlin faces No. 16 East St. Louis Assumption at 8:30.

The Devils (16-4) have the weekend off. They will host Sunner at 7:30 on Monday. Their game against Sparta in the Superfan Shootout, on the schedule for Tuesday at Bellevue Althoff, has been changed to Feb. 11 at BAC at 6:30 p.m.

•Regional

Edwards (6-10) will go at 135 and Doug Norton (2-15) will go at 140. Senior James Scheerer (3-12) is the choice at 145, with freshman John Rickert (2-8) ready at 152.

"Anything we get in the middle of the lineup will be a surprise," said Garland.

Granite City toughens up again in the upper weight classes. Senior Dan Grayson (23-13) will be in the running at 160.

"Kris Armstrong of Althoff and Darnell Thomas (Cahokia) will be very tough," Garland said. "It will come down to how much Dan wants to do it."

Junior Brad Massey (22-8-2) has had an excellent year at 171 and Garland expects a lot out of him despite a pulled rib muscle suffered last week. Junior Larry Hahne (21-12-1) will also be in the running at 189.

"Larry is hot and cold," Garland said. "He was in his match with (Cahokia's) Jon Drake last week until he made a mistake in the third period that cost him five points. He has to avoid that one big mistake."

Senior Rocky Moss (12-8-1) has also impressed Garland at 275 since stepping in for the injured Dale Hutson.

"Rocky's record in January was just phenomenal," Garland said. "The thing about him is he'll outsmart you."

"I just hope there isn't a let-down for us after winning the conference. But they know this is what we work for all year. I just hope all the injuries and guys leaving the team doesn't catch up with us."

"This is an outstanding regional," said Baum. "We'll have 39 wrestlers coming out of our regional. And I really think we'll have more of them go on to state than any of the other three regionals in our sectional."

The regional starts at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Cahokia High School gym and continues with three sessions throughout the day. The top four teams will meet on Tuesday in Cahokia for the sectional semifinals and finals.

Joining Cahokia and Granite City in the regional are Bellevue, Bellevue West, Bellevue Althoff, East St. Louis, East St. Louis Lincoln, Mascoutah and O'Fallon.

•Column

Several of the McClellan North players also played for the Stars soccer team and reminisced about the soccer game played between the two schools last fall (Warriors won 1-0 on Scott Stone's overtime goal).

Jeff Carrioco of the Stars was easily the most physical player on the ice, smashing heavily into any Granite City players he got near. He scored one goal and picked up four penalties. He was also the most jovial visitor to the penalty box. He was — where else? — in the box when the game ended and shook hands with all of his new-found friends.

"I never had the hockey player mentality," he said. "I guess that's why I became a goalie."

Still, the hockey player mentality of forgive and forget once they left the ice was easily superior to the mentality shown by the spectators on Monday.

Former Warrior goalie Collins Harlan, who played on some of Granite City's finest teams in the mid-'80s, served as timekeeper for the game and was basically amused with what he saw. Harlan remembered "dancing" with the opposition goaltender during a wild brawl a few years ago.

"I never had the hockey player mentality," he said. "I guess that's why I became a goalie."

Still, the hockey player mentality of forgive and forget once they left the ice was easily superior to the mentality shown by the spectators on Monday.
